Berlin Cracks Fifth-Column Plot; Jail 700

Carloads of Commies With Forged Visas in Bonn Overthrow Try

HELMSTEDT, Germany -West Germany federal police announced Saturday night they have cracked a largescale Communist attempt to smuggle Red agitators into the Bonn Republic before the critical Sept. 6 elections. Police arrested 700 suspects at this border checkpoint.

The arrests were made in the last 24 hours on five westbound interzonal trains.

In the cast zone, Soviet troops and Communist police occupied several East German factories Saturday to crush anti-Communist demonstrations and arrested at least 100 workers, the West Berlin newspaper, Telegraf, reported,

The newspaper also said that 200 workers protesting the Communist ban on picking up Eisenhower food packages clashed with police in East Berlin's Oberschoeneweide electric equipment factory Fifteen workers were arrested.

year-old boys were shot in a juve-nile gang fight Saturday night in Dana Strand housing project.

The victims are Lovell Stanfield, 12320 Wilmington Ave., Willowbrook, and Jewell Robinson, 1001-D Court. They were taken to Harbor General Hospital.

Juvenile authorities were holding four boys, said to be member of rival gangs. One of them admitted the shootings with a .22-caliber rifle. Stanfield was wounded in the lower back and in the right leg. His condition was serious. Robinson was wounded in the right hip.

Officers said the trouble started about a week ago when several youths attacked the younger brother of the boy who admitted the shootings and beat him se-

Need to Hike Debt Limit Past--Byrd

WASHINGTON-(AP). Sen. Byrd (D.-Va.) and five of his colleagues said Saturday a prospective two billion dollar spending cut has made it unnecessary for Congress to boost the national debt limit. One of the group, Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo.) suggested that the savings may lead to tax reductions but Byrd discounted this, and Sen. Olin Johnston (D. S.C.) cautioned against economies which might "wreck the country's defense."

Byrd, who led the fight that shelved President Eisenhower's request for an increase in the $275,000,000,000 statutory debt limit, said quest for an increase in the $275,000,000,000 statutory debt limit, said e felt the announcement by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey urday over a fortune in sodof the $2,000,000,000 spending cut "vindicates Congress" action."

Hunt said he saw in the proposed reduction of expenditures in the current fiscal year to $72,000,000,000 some prospect of lowering excise and corporation taxes next year.

In separate interviews, Sens. Flanders (R.-Vt.), Holland (D.-Fla.) and Watkins (R.-Utah) expressed the opinion that the proposed economies would make it unnecessary to raise the debt ceiling.

Is This the Car of the Future?

Drawing courtesy Motor Trend

Long Beach designer Bill Crabtree won a scholarship with this drawing of tomorrows car. He says it provides quieter ride, more traction and more roadability.

THE CAR of the future will be maneuverable so that it can be parked easily, and functional so that it can travel fast in heavy traffic. It will be highly specialized, and it is likely to be somewhat smaller than present day cars.

So believes an enthusiastic 18-year-old, William King Crabtree - "Bill" to his friends who has been interested in cars all of his life, and has sketched cars much of his life.

By Vera Williams

Bill, 933 Terraine Ave., was one of the five winners of a national contest sponsored by Motor Trends magazine for new car designs. His award is a four-year $2000 scholarship to the Los Angeles Art Center, starting with the term beginning Sept. 28.

Guess what he will do at the Art Center?

"Design cars, mostly," says

When Bill read about the contest in the spring, he already had most of the work done because he had been accumulating drawings for a couple of years.

"I bundled off a portfolio of 25 or 30 sketches and 10 finished drawings, and got in just under the wire," says the lanky 6-foot 1-inch youth who works at a service station at 3565 Pacific Coast Hwy.

His prize-winning drawing of a coupe done in two-tone gold and black, appears under the heading, "From Dream to Drawing Board to . . . " in the current issue of Motor Trends.

THE MAGAZINE ARTICLE accompanying the drawing says: "William King Crabtree, Long Beach, designed and engineered for the future with these principles in mind: the safety, needs and comfort of the public. Born in Oklahoma 18 years ago, William Crabtree is approaching automotive design with ideas well ahead of his years. He believes in simplicity of style, maximum safety and design that is practical, attractive, comfortable yet low in cost.

"His coupe looks nearly 'sonic' in concept, but it utilizes all the desires of the designer, who feels that this car could be developed in the next 10 years.

"The rear-engined car would be the size of present cars in the low-price class. Controls are centrally located. As the door retracts into the rear fender, the window panel is raised. Airscoops are more than decoration; scoops on the sides cool the. engine and the brakes; an airscoop on the car's roof provides fresh aid for the air-conditioning system. The fact that this car, and variations of it, are designed to seat either two or four people at the most is an indication of the trend to specialization in our cars of the future."

In Bill's model, the seats would be separate and adjustable, similar to bus seats. Each seat also would have a safety belt.

He planned the car for commercial use, and thinks it would make an excellent police car.

How fast would it go?

"I don't know," admits Bill. "I'm a designer, not an engineer."

THE art of confronting the consumer with something to sell evidently knows no limits. No matter where you are, the salesmen are after you.

That's how it was at the inter-section of Whittier Blvd. and Lakewood Friday. While drivers sat in their cars waiting for the red light to turn green, a man ran up and down the line of cars, hawking ice cream bars.

Now that the ice is broken, we've got more news about people seeing color TV on ordinary sets.

It started, as you'll remember, with this dept's little yarn early in the week about Mr. and Mrs. W, G. Billinger of L. B., who have been seeing swell colored pictures on their TV set for two or three years. Other papers and the wire services picked up the unusual story.

And when Mrs. J. Bauserman of Harbor City saw it, in this column, she was, according to her own report, "happy and relieved." She writes:

"I, too, saw part of the Christmas parade in color, and have seen scenes in movies on TV in color for a second or two, four or five times since.

"I've been sneered and jeered at and told to see a psychiatrist. Then last week my husband was home, and a western movie came on in brown and green. They were the only two colors that showed, but they were very distinct. Now, at last, hubby is on my side. "We have a Westinghouse set. What make do the Billingers have?'

However, the biggest mosquitoes I ever saw were neither in California nor Oregon. They were in the Kootenai River Valley of Northern Idaho.

.The chief no doubt knows what 'he's talking about, but I'm still ivondering if Mrs. Rogers hasn't got something for some smart fellow to work on.

MAYBE you didn't know that pictures of Christiane Martel, Miss France and Miss Universe of 1953, appeared on the covers of various French magazines, though it's natural enough that they would. Some people are claiming that Christiane's sister, who is over here with her, shades Miss

Where Is Southern California?

EVERYONE AGREES that Southern California, with its mountains, its deserts, its beaches and its climate is a wonderland - yet, ask any 10 residents to name the boundaries of the area in which they live, and you'll get 10 different answers.

The main difficulty encountered in defining Southern California is the fact that different groups and organizations who have provided any kind of boundaries at all, have done so for diverse reasons.

An important definition of the Southern California region comes from the California State Chamber of Commerce. This organization, for purposes of reporting economic data, divides the entire state into six geographic areas. Of these, Southern California, the sixth and southernmost region, is composed of 10 counties: Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange, Mono, Inyo, San Bernardino, Riverside, San Diego and Imperial (see map).

Another method used to define the region is to draw a straight line through the state at the San Luis Obispo, Kern and San Bernardino Counties lines.

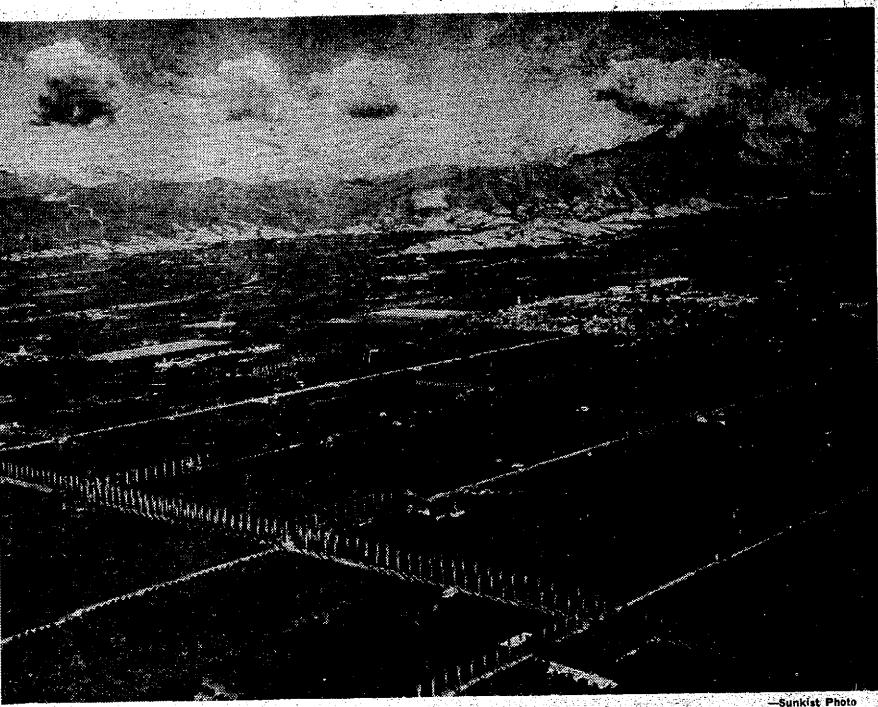

Los Angeles County Chamber of Commerce, in reporting on Southern California agriculture, defines Southern California by drawing the straight line, as explained, and adds Kings County and Tulare County.

The State Chamber of Commerce opposes this definition and includes Kings and Tulare Counties, along with Kern, in the San Joaquin region.

THE NATURAL BARRIERS of the state are so situated that by using them as boundaries, the state can be separated into very distinct regions. Using this same method, the regions can be divided into sub-regions.

The 10 counties of Southern California are separated into three main sub-regions: The coastal plain, the desert, and the mountains.

Of the three, the coastal plain

Valley. It is Los Angeles with its 450 square miles of metropolitan district, the orange groves, the grape vineyards, the Pacific Ocean, the beaches, of the coastal plain.

This coastal plain includes that portion of Santa Barbara County south of the Tehachapis, all of Ventura, Los Angeles and Orange Counties, and those portions of San Bernardino, Riverside and San Diego Counties west of the mountains (see

It has a length of 275 miles and a depth that varies from a few miles to almost 100 miles.

any other part of the state as if it were another country. For this reason some name should be coined for this sub-region to separate it from the rest of Southern California, as sharply as it is separated by geography and climate. A name used by many is "Southland"

The name "Southland" would create a necessary distinction between a region and a sub-

Since the geographical barriers separating the sub-regions of Southern California are so pronounced, it is only natural that the climate should be just as pronounced.

The coastal plain is a semiarid land, ringed by high mountains. These mountains separate the coastal plain from the desert, and keep out the dust and heat. And because the land is near desert, the sun shines most of the year.

It is a combination of mountains, near desert and ocean breezes that make the climate.

IN THIS CLIMATE, the soils of the Southland, while poor, would grow almost anything if irrigated.

There is the story that a man in Orange County was standing on a squash, chopping a hole in it, when he dropped his ax inside the squash.

When he lowered a ladder and climbed down into the squash to retrieve the ax, he unexpectedly met another man, who asked, "Hey, what brings you down

"I'm trying to find my ax," the man answered.

"Heck! You might as well forget it. I lost a hay wagon and four mules down here a week ago, and haven't found 'em

Another story has to do with the phenomenal growth of corn. The corn would grow so fast that it would jump into the air, and pull its roots up with it, and then usually would die.

Fields of corn were reported, though, that lived for quite a spell, even with their roots out of the ground, on the climate

Walled off from the rest of by the sea.

the country by mountain ranges and desert wastes, the Southland, as Helen Hunt Jackson, author of "Ramona," once said, "is a sort of island on the land."

This island on the land is defined as a sub-region of the Southern California region.

And the "island on the land" is a coastal strip of land, a "land of the sundown sea," a sub-region geographically remote from the rest of the country, a land is the most important.

This coastal plain stretches from Santa Barbara to San Diego and from the mountains to the Pacific. On the north is the transverse range of the Tehachapi Mountains, which run roughly in an east-west direction, connecting the Sierra Nevada with the Coastal Range.

GEOGRAPHICALLY removed from the northern part of the state by the Tchachapis, rescued from the desert by the high barrier of the San Bernardino and the San Jacinto Mountains on the east -- this coastal strip, to the people who live in its cities, is Southern California.

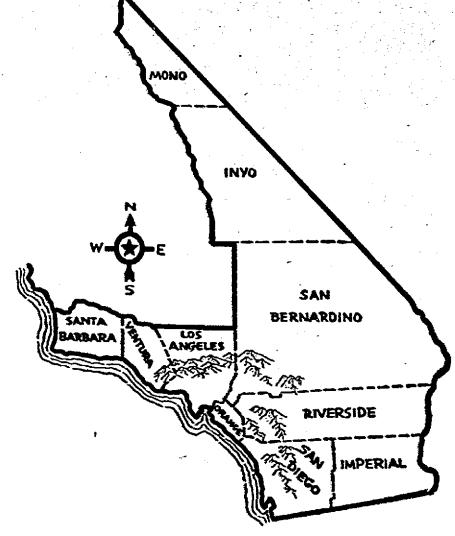

To them, Southern California isn't the Mojave Desert, or Owens Valley, or the Imperial

The total land area is 11,729 square miles, an area almost as large as Maryland and Delaware combined.

The difficulty that now presents itself is a strange one: A region is dominated by a subregion.

It is a fact that the coastal plain of Southern California has most of the population of the 10 counties, and a good half of the population of the state. Los Angeles alone has nearly 4,000,000

THE COASTAL PLAIN is made up of a network of cities and towns stretching from Santa Barbara to San Diege, from Santa Monica to San Bernardino. It is the very heart of Southern California, and the area is as distinct, as unlike

-Drawing by Parker Markis.

And these 10 counties—an area as big as Maryland and Delaware combined-comprise Southern California, says the California State Chamber of Commerce.

Among the strains are the standards, almost jet black; half-books called startights; pastels which have a lovely taway shade; breath-of-spring, reacts brown with white creasi motifing; pale gray platiner; black and whites; and the deline model of the mink fam-Hy known as sapphire. strain may become fixed to produce that sought-after rarity, a new mutant.

All these references to "ranches" and "ranchers" might lead one unacquainted with mink raising to believe that a large amount of ground is necessary to raise the animals. Such is not the case, however, for the largest farm in the state covers only five acres, and Labhart's attractive place with its brick-trimmed ranch style home is situated on only an acre of ground. The production of mink pelts, once relegated to the backwoods trapper, is now going on all over Southern Cali-

The quality of ranch-bred pelts versus those trapped in the wild state is ever a controversial subject, says Labhart. Wild mink are semi-aquatic, living almost exclusively on fish. Labhart, like most of the growers, has found that a combination of fish, horse meat and cereal, either fresh or frozen, is adequate in every respect to supply a well rounded diet which will keep the animals healthy and grow top quality

CALIFORNIA, especially the Southland, provides near-perfect conditions for mink farming. The mild weather makes housing and caring for them comparatively simple and allows them to be kept in partially covered wire cages, raised a few feet above the ground, the year around. When the thermometer drops to near freezing, the ranchers know a heavy undercoating of fur will result. Too, the Indian summer weather experienced here just as the skins are reaching their prime is balmy enough to prevent harmful singeing.

. By November, after months of meticulous care, the mink are "prime" . . . they are supple and glisten in the sunlight. They are at their loveliest and ready to be sacrificed to the cause of vanity and the whim of fashion.

It's feeding time at the Labhart mink ranch in Lynwood. Mink are fed a combination of fish. horsement and cereal thriving on the diet. Labbart ranch occupies only one acre of ground.

BURLINGTON, Vt.—A University of Vermont review board voted Saturday night to recommend dismissal for Dr. Alex B. Novikoff, suspended cancer researcher who declined to answer questions before the Senate (Jenner) Internal Security subcom-

The professor denied he is a Communist but refused to talk publicly about his activities before joining the faculty. He volunteered to make a "full and complete" dis-closure of his activities prior to 1948 providing newsmen were barred from the hearing.

Prof. Paul Evans, chairman of the board, said Novikoff had been found guilty of "conduct which should lead to his dismissal." He said the vote was 14-8 for dismissal.

The university trustees announced that they will meet next Saturday to consider the dismissal

The vote was taken after a day long public hearing at which the 40-year-old Novikoff offered to tell the review board "everything" in private about his activities up to 1948. He has said he is not now a Communist.

Novikoff said he did not wish to "name names" and subject persons whom he believed to be innocent to the "same pressures, indignities and discomfort. . . ."

Four character witnesses appeared at the public session Saturday and praised the Russianborn biochemistry associate pro-fessor. No witnesses were present for the university.

Bishop Vedder Van Dyke of the Episcopal Church in Vermont said Novikoff "is a man in whom I

... and See the World

The old slogan. "Join the Navy and see the world." is much more than just a saying, as young men of the Long Beach area who took part in an annual summer training cruise will agree. More than 750 Reservists participated in the 8000-mile cruise which took them to Lima, Peru, the Panama Canal and old Manzanillo, Mexico. For many of these Reservists, the cruise was their first major training aboard a man o'war. Under the critical direction of seasoned crews, the previously shore based trainees shaped rapidly into saity sailors who will be ready when needed to man the ships of the U.S. Fleet. Reproduced on this page are some scenes photographed on the cruise.

Upon the death of Father Serra in 1784, Padre Lasuen became father-president of the mission chain, then numbering nine outposts. He proceeded to found the missions of Santa Barbara. La Purisima Concepcion, Santa Cruz, Soledad, San Jose, San Juan Bautista, San Miguel, San Fernando Rey and San Luis Rey.

Although his headquarters were at San Carlos in Monterey, he was gone most of the time, making trips over crude paths up and down the 500-mile coastline, eventually placing the mission chain on a sound footing.

Throughout his stay in California, he served without pay, receiving only alms shared by fellow Franciscans. He died in 1803 at Mission San Carlos at the age of 83.

Although overshadowed historically by the volumes written on Padre Junipero Serra, Lasuen was among the most vital forces in the orderly development of California and without him Spanish efforts here might have failed.

By Spencer Crump

UST 180 YEARS AGO TO-DAY, Father Fermin Francisco de Lasuen, one of the best loved of the Spanish padres, arrived in California for 30 years of service, during which he founded nine new missions and placed the chain on a firm footing.

Popular with most factions of Californianos, Padre Lasuen was equally acclaimed by visitors. So esteemed was he by George Vanconver. the English explorer, that the Briton named the extreme points of San Pedro Bay for the missionary. These names, Point Fermin and Point Lasuen, are retained to this day.

Padre Lasuen was born in the Basque province of Alava and served as a missionary in Mexico before assignment to the mission chain in Lower Californit. When these outposts were placed under jurisdiction of the Dominican order, Padre Lasuen was assigned to the newer California chain. He arrived here on Aug. 30, 1773.

THE PADRE was assigned to Mission San Gabriel and later formally inaugurated Mission San Gabriel Through Indian

YITH SERVICE AVAILA-BLE to all residents of Long Beach, Lakewood, Downey, Carmelitos and Signal Hill, the Visiting Nurse Service, 921 Pacific Ave., gives invaluable bedside care in homes. The Visiting Nurse Service is an agency of the Community Chest, which in October will have its annual campaign for funds.

Miss Mabel Crossley, director, heads the staff of five registered nurses, all of whom have had special university training in public health. The nurses work five days a week, averaging 10 to 12 calls a day.

In the homes they give baths. to patients, give treatments including hypodermics, work out diets, help rehabilitate the patient and teach the family how to care for him. A $3 charge is made for each visit. If the patient can pay - fine. If he can't, perhaps he can pay part of it. But he gets the same service if he can pay nothing.

Explains Miss Crossley: "The visiting nurse helps families carry out medical directions and instructs them how to care for the ill person, and how to prevent future illness.

"She teaches infant care to young mothers before their babies are born or afterwards. She counsels on problems directly related to the physical and mental health of all age groups.

"The Visiting Nurse Service is an economical form of nursing. The visiting nurse stays in a home long enough to carry out the physician's orders and give needed care and instruction. In this way a number of families can share the services of one nurse in a single day.

"Visiting Nurse Service is for everyone in the community. The nurse responds to every call but gives skilled nursing care only if a regularly licensed physician is in charge. The nurse carries her own equipment but does not supply medicines or dressings.

"GENERAL NURSING care can be given on the verbal order of the physician, but a written, signed order by the physician is required for hypodermic therapy and complicated dressings."

Three-fourths of the patients cared for by the visiting nurses are elderly, says Miss Crossley. About 10 per cent are young mothers and babies. The nurses work in close co-operation with the Veterans Bureau, American Cancer Society and Tuberculosis Association.

Among the patients being cared for now are two elderly sisters who live together. One sister is blind, the other has just lost a foot. Another is a young war veteran, an arthritis victim who spends days and nights on his back on a reclining wheel chair.

Board Acts to Avert U.S. Rail Strike

. By Associated Press

The National Mediation Board in Washington acted Saturday in an effort to avert a threatened strike of railroad conductors. Some 85,000 telephone and rubber workers continued their walkouts.

The NMB invited the Order of Railway Conductors, an independ-ent union with 35,000 members, and rail representatives to confer the board in Washington

The conductors, seeking a grad-uated rate of pay based on the power of locomotives, have threatened to strike at 6 a. m. Sept. 19. However, if their union or management asks for mediation, the strike will be delayed automatically for 60 days.

Tuesday's conference would not have that effect. It is merely an effort by the board to have both sides talk over the situation.

A strike would be aimed only at selected rail lines. The union sald it might be expanded later. In the six-state strike of 53,000 CIO Communications Workers

Where only two get together, or where 50 or more assemble, the hostess can dust off her imagination and with the aid of a few cans, bottles and a color scheme, come forth with some very delectable "refreshers."

Mrs. Frederick Kellogg, 5830 Bayshore Wk., appreciates how closely allied are friends and refreshments. She has keen perception, too, of the importance of those gay little touches which are extra, but mighty nice. For instance, tinted ice cubes and frosted glasses add to the gracious hospitality. She has given us her favorite punch recipe, which we're passing along to you elsewhere on this page. Following are other quenchers for children and for adults:

frigerate overnight, or till mint is perky.

Frosty Rims

For a "frost" on the rims of your tall glasses, dip edge of each glass lightly first into lemon juice, then into granulated sugar. Chill a while.

Garnished Ice Cubes

Pour water into freezing tray till about two-thirds full (boiled water may aid clarity); then let cubes freeze. Now place any one, or combination, of the following on top of cubes: then pour on just enough water to cover. Finish freezing, then remove ice cubes.

Orange, lemon or lime slices, cut into small wedges

2 No. 2 cans orange juice

2 12-oz. bottles ginger ale

1 pint pineapple sherbet

Float slices of fruit for decorating.

Into a small freezing tray, empty thawed contents of 1 can frozen lemonade, limeade, orange, tangerine or grapejuice concentrate. Set ice-cube section in place, slowly fill with water. Freeze.

Affiliates

Cranberry juice with scoop of lemon sherbet.

Milk with touch of vanilla flavoring or molasses.

Sparkling drinks, orange slice over rim, fresh cherries.

Buttermilk mixed with sliced, sweetened strawberries.

Party Fare

Picnic Lemonade: Carry lemon juice and sugar, mixed but undiluted. Or take frozen lemonade concentrate.

Claret lemonade: Empty 1 can frozen lemonade concentrate into one-quart measure; add ¾ cup claret; fill with water; mix well.

Pink Lemonade: Add 1/2 cup crushed sweetened or thawed frozen, strawberries or raspberries per quart of lemonade.

Minted orange juice; Add a drop of mint flavoring to homesqueezed orange juice or reconstituted frozen concentrate. Float mint on top.

Cola flate: Serve Cola drinks with vanilla ice cream.

Homemade ice cream sodas: Pineapple, strawberry, blueberry, raspberry, cherry, mocha, maple-flavored.

Wine Punch

1 cup strong, freshly brewed tea (made using 2 teaspoons tea to a cup of boiling water)

1 cup Angelica, white port, Tokay or any dessert wine

Gracious touch in entertaining is a zestful punch, as made for her guests by Mrs. Frederick Kellogg, above.

1 scoop (% pint) prepackaged vanilla, coffee or chocolate ice cream

Put molasses in 12-ounce glass; fill half full with milk. Add ice cream; stir vigorously. Fill glass to top with milk. Yield: 1 serving.

For the Youngsters Cut off top of lemon. Insert hard peppermint candy stick one inch into lemon. Squeeze hard and suck.

2 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine all ingredients. Pour over ice cubes to chill. Serve in tall glasses. Garnish with orange slices. Serves two or three.

To make it for about 12 or 14 people, make 4 to 6 cups of tea

Orange slices

and a quart of wine.

Taffy Float

2 tablespoons unsulphured molasses

Kitchen Tip:

Mrs. Kellogg's Kitchen Tip: Wash parsley or watercress. Shake dry in towel. Store in refrigerator in Mason jar. This will keep fresh about a week.

Traditional Creates Elegance

Traditional furniture on a mall scale was chosen by Jack and Nita Cooper for their home at 5906 Elkport St., thus creating a feeling of unexpected elegance.

ACK AND NITA COOPER have put traditional furnishing to best use in their tract house at 5906 Elkport St., thereby creating a feeling of unexpected elegance.

The small entry hall has been hung with a series of miniatures framed in baroque gilt frames. The tiny pictures are hung in rows on wine velvet ribbon that, in combination with the gold, contrives to create an important note of richness opposite the front door.

A delightful deviation from the "small house rule-of-thumb" is the fact that the Coopers' dining room is a room in itself, completely separate from the living room. The entry, with its dropped ceiling, divides the

Antique blue — a soft greyed tone - is used in the living room and entry. The same color is carried out in the dining room wainscot and paper, unifying the three areas. The use of different wall colors would have lessened the feeling of fluidity and space which the monochromatic color scheme affords.

Mrs. Cooper had these rooms painted, leaving the ceiling and woodwork white. One reason for this is the fact that the white and blue combination gave the rooms a delicate cameo quality often associated with Wedgewood. This, of course, is a perfect setting for the rich mahogany furniture, but the most important reason is that the white ceilings reflect light into the rooms, whereas blue would have darkened them and detracted from their size.

ICE BLUE DAMASK draperies overpatterned in a floral motif of antique pink draw across a large bay window. The pleated valance is of repeated antique pink. On the floor is a large hooked rug, worked in shades of grey-blue, pink, rose and off-white.

The furniture has all the elegance typical of good period furniture but Mrs. Cooper was wise in keeping the dimensions of the pieces small.

Opposite the bay window, and pricely balancing the room, is a mahogany spinet piano. And adjacent to it is a channel-back chair upholstered in cherry-colored velvet.

A sofa, - over which hangs a large, round gilt-framed mirror that reflects the dining room opposite, is covered in grey-blue damask. In front of it stands a nest of leather-topped mahogany coffee tables. Furniture like this is ideally suited for the small home. When nested, the tables present a single item of adequate dimensions to hold s m-o king accessories, a candy bowl and magazinues. But for parties or snack time, two more little tables emerge from under the parent table, ready to serve at a moment's notice.

The dining room has been given a lot of importance despite the fact that its footage is small. A rather ordinary light fixture was replaced with a small but exquisite hanging chandelier of imported crystal prisms. The windows are hung with very full and sheer white tie-backs. The wainscot of the room is blue to match the other rooms. The paper above has a gay pattern depicting dancing couples dressed in costumes characteristic of the Caribbean. The figures are carried out in colors, with white and cherry predominating. The ground is a combination of soft antique blue and a deeper slate shade.

MRS. COOPER'S fondness for blue is further exemplified in the kitchen. This shade, however, is a clearer sky-blue than that used in the living room. The wall tone and the plastic tile flooring match. Windows over the sink and in the dinette are uniquely curtained in glazed chintz in a bright citrus yellow over-patterned in red and blue.

Cabinets are blue, the doors and drawer fronts oyster white and the cupboard interiors are a cheery yellow. What a gay place in which to cook and dine!

The den, which opens off the

Erosion Emergency

SOME THINGS are hard to understand.

For instance:

Since 1945 the United States government has given or loaned foreign nations something like $50 billion to help them fight the erosion of communism.

Yet, Congress has failed to act on a request for $350,-000 to combat the disastrous erosion of the Seal Beach-Sunset Beach area by ocean waves, even though engineering studies show that the federal government is responsible for this erosion.

We're not being facetious. There's a sad contradiction in such a situation. We hope this contradiction is impressed on the civil functions subcommittee of the House appropriations committee when it comes out to look at the erosica problem next month.

Rep. James B. Utt of the 28th Congressional District has described the Seal Beach-Sunset Beach erosion problem as the "worst in the nation."

Structures that were resting on beach foundations several weeks ago have been undermined and are now standing on stilts. That's in the Surfside-Sunset Beach area, where the pounding waves are a constant menace. Seal Beach has managed to protect ocean-front homes temporarily by erecting dikes. But these dikes have been packed down and are insufficient to restrain really heavy seas-which means that Seal Beach faces trouble this winter unless relief action is taken. Seal Beach and county officials have asked for funds to pump sand onto a critical strip of beach as an emergency measure. So far, no federal

The government's responsibility has been determined by engineering studies, which have shown that the Navy depot jetties and extension of the federal breakwater are contributing causes. Newly formed channels have sent ocean waves pounding in upon the beaches with increased

True, Army Engineers have made recommendations for remedial work such as extension of the federal breakwater to form a protective barrier to the buffeted areas. However, this is a long-range plan.

Protective measure should be taken immediately.

Our neighbors to the east have a right to expect prompt action from the federal government. Unless the visiting committee is unwilling to believe its own eyes, it surely will do everything possible to dig up some domestic aid for a home front erosion problem.

Death of an Editor

I FIRST MET BING back in the late 20's when the American Society of Newspaper Editors held its annual meetings at the Willard Hotel in Washington. In those days, the A. S. N. E., which had been founded in 1922, was a small organization numerically but was beginning to make its influence felt in newspaper circles as a lusty, potent forum for discussion of journalistic practices.

Even then, Malcolm W. Bingay was rated by members of his craft as one of the best newspapermen in the country.

Bing had started in the newspaper game as an office boy, was a sports editor before he was 20 and won his laurels the hard way on Detroit newspapers as city editor, managing editor, editorial director and Pulitzer honor winner.

When Bing was stricken at his desk at the Detroit Free Press a week ago, the end came quickly and mercifully, terminating more than 50 years in the profession which he dearly loved and had served so well.

authored a spritcl collection of stories and portraits about Detroit lore called "Detroit Is My Own Home Town." Following the title page, this paragraph appeared:

"This book is dedicated to John S. Knight, a publisher with a heart of a reporter and the soul of an editor, who thinks a type-writer means more to a newspaper than an adding machine."

Lest the personal reference sound immodest, it is mentioned here only to illustrate Bing's devotion and dedication to the writing side of his newspaper.

Bing was a great editor because he detested mediocrity in any He was a keen judge of news, a brilliant and prolific writer and an expert in the field of typography. He had little patience with alibis and stupidity. In his young journalistic days, he drove others at the same tremendous pace he set for himself. In some ways, Bing was a curious contradiction. While he preferred the reasoned judgments of journalists such as Arthur Krock and Walter Lippmann, his own editorial weapon, to quote the Detroit Times, was the broadaxe, not the rapier. Behind his sometimes blustery exterior was a warm, emotional and sympathetic nature. Bing often pretended to take a cynical view of men and events but those who understood him best knew the "Old Coot" was mighty soft inside. Back in 1945. I asked Bing if he would like to go to Germany with a group of other editors to investigate the Nazi prison camps. As he wrote later, "We traveled 14,000 miles in 14 days and saw what we were sent to see, the most horrible hells ever devised by the warped minds of madmen.

While in Europe, Bing met Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. He was so bowled over by Ike's graciousness and sincerity that he told Ben Hibbs, editor of the Saturday Evening Post: "Ben, there is my Hibbs, editor of the Saturday Evening Post; candidate for President of the United States." "On what ticket, Bing?" asked Hibbs.

Bing replied: "It doesn't matter to me, Ben. I'll vote for him on the Prohibition ticket."

Bing was so fed up with ratty politicians that as he put it: "Ike made you wish you could toss your hat in the air and yell as though

In becoming the first editor to declare for Eisenhower, Bing again revealed the canny insight about public figures which made him alternately admired and feared.

Bing had a host of friends he never knew and probably an equal number of enemies who hated his guts.

He dished it out in his daily column, and he could take it, too, with an unfailing sense of humor and self-deprecation.

There are more famous names in American journalism than Malcolm W. Bingay. Few, however, are better known to the men who edit the nation's newspapers.

Bing never wanted to be anything but a newspaperman and he became one of the greatest editors of our times.

"Life's race well run, Life's work well done, Life's victory won, Now cometh rest."

WASHINGTON. The Senate report on krebiozen, a new treatment for cancer, prepared the direction of the late Sen.

"Dr. McCormick apparently was not informed that I have reported that a well-known tumor clinic observed favorable changes in tumors in 45 per changes in tumors in 45 per cent of patients after krebiozen was given. "Furthermore, the AMA has never sought to establish the value of krebiozen," continued Dr. Ivy. "It has not tried striously to find out if it is active in the cancer patient. All it has done is to publish two reports based on fabrications and very incomplete case studies.

'Dr. McCormick vituperatively refers to the 'promoters' of krebiozen. Krebiozen has no 'promoters.' It has never been offered for sale or sold. Some 65,000 doses have been given away free. Does he (Dr. Mc-Cormick) mean to suggest that representatives of the U. S. Senate have been engaged in the promotion of krebiozen?

"The AMA should serve without infringement of the rights of others as a watchdog to caution the public regarding harmful and worthless remedies. But are dishonest tactics and inadequate scientific procedures required to protect the public against krebiozen?

"I firmly believe," concluded the University of Illinois expert, "the cancer sufferers, which a few officials of the AMA seem so eager to protect, would be better served by an honest, nonperiodiced appraisal of the facts regarding krebiozen. provided in its present charter died when NATO was born. What has been going on in Korea is an armed resistance by an alliance of 16 nations which undertook to enforce the ideals and aims of the U. N. by a collective defense against aggression. The Korean war had "two sides" within the U. N., as the armistice agreement actually describes the belligerents. This is confirmation of the fact that the Security Council is not remarked only not as an exemt to garded any more as an agent to enforce peace and that the as-sembly is still as Mr. Dulles himself calls it, only an "advisory" body.

The meeting in 1955 to "reof a delegate from the government itself and that hence the Security Council, which can act only unanimously, could not have authorized the resistance vise" the charter might better, be called a meeting to resurrect the United Nations and make it a universal instrument for the maintenance of peace in the world. Reading reports of a recent debate in the British Parlia ment leaves little doubt about the British displeasure over our opposition to trading with the Chinese Reds. Since Brit ain has recognized the Chinese Red government, it seems logical that they should trade freely so long as fighting has stopped. But it is hard for Americans to understand the read soning behind trading with the enemy while American and British men were being killed in battle with this same Chip nese government. But there is no question as concerns the Chiang Kai-shek's forces have been carrying on a weak blockade of the mainland. They have only small patrol boats, but they have caused so much trouble that the British have reinforced their naval strength in the area. It is apparent British ships are increasing their trading with the Communists. It is estimated British freighters have carried three times as much cargo to the mainland the past few months as they did for the same months a year ago. The goods are supposed to be non-war materials. But it is hard to understand how you can justify sending anything to an enemy you were fighting in Korea.

It is a strange situation when we recall how President Roosevelt gave the British 25 "over age" destroyers when Britain was fighting Hitler. Now we find ourselves about to give 25 destroyers to Chiang Kai-shek for the purpose of stopping British ships from aiding an enemy. It is a part of the terrible confusion around the world. Out of the Korean conferences will come demands that the Chinese Reds be given China's seat on the United Nations. There is an apparent policy of appeasement of the Communists by the British. It is evident we are a long way from having settled affairs in the Far East.—L. A. C.

TOWN MEETING

Civic Center

TO THE EDITOR:

In discussion of a civic center location, let's not forget the fact that the business district has a west as well as a north and east feeder population.

The big employment at Proctor and Gamble, the Ford plant, the Walson Cambon and Cambon and Cambon and Cambon and Cambon Ca Spencer Kellog, the Kaiser Gyp-sum plant, and the Navy yard— there is the real breadbasket that feeds the multitudes, and these people buy downtown because they known the downtown stores, seeing them daily. The south furnishes the ship crews and supplies. All of which means the civic center as now located should be expanded. The county needs enormous space, the federal government needs more for offices like courts, FBI, Coast Guard, I believe the people should study these facts, then they would recognize these natural anchors for our future and vote a downtown civic center site and expansions. DICK RACINE.

'No Parking' TO THE EDITOR:

Pier Place is a narrow alloy ading from Seaside Blvd. to the steps located directly east of the Jergins Trust Bldg. The place is narrow. The curbing is covered with red paint with letters in white, "no parking." Nevertheless, drivers park their automobiles in the narrow roadway, endangering the lives and property of others.

What fools such mortals be.

Unemployed TO THE EDITOR:

What is the matter with the employment situation in Long Beach that women between 35 and 50 can't get jobs they are suited for as general office clerks, where they have had lo-cal experience? These women cal experience? These women are told that jobs are open only to young folks.

My opinion is that the older

Look, No Walks!

TO THE EDITOR: Recently a beautiful double drive was completed on San Antonio Dr. between Orange and Cherry Aves., but no sidewalks. Can you tell me why they are now putting walks along the west side of Orange, north of Carson, where they will be hardly used, and along an embank-ment on the east side of Atlantic, near Del Amo, which will get little use, while the many residents north and south of San Antonio have to walk in the dirt on the street endangering their lives? # How to Create Floral Arrangements

Mrs. Max Wilmarth carries off many prizes at Southland flower shows. Reason: each arrangement calls for its own container, SHAPED to the floral idea. Here she is glazing a container for floating camellias.

And here is the finished arrangement. It would have been wrong in anything but a low vase since camellias are best floated. And what could be more romantic than camellias and candle-light together?

Bird of Paradise exemplifies an inverted triangle, an arrangement with which Mrs. Wilmarth is most successful.

Amongilis demanded its own container. Mrs. Wilmorth cress died one of pale blue with orange stripes to match flowers.

Chinese Send Big Guns to Indochina

HANOI, Indochina—(2). Communist China, for the first time, is now sending big field guns into Indo-China to help the Communist-led Vietminh, according to Gen. Rene Cogny, commander of French union forces in Northern Indochina. Indochina.

Cogny reported the Vietminh are now getting guns of 105-millimeter caliber from the Chinese. As far as is known this is the heaviest piece ever delivered to the Vietminh, although they have used 120-millimeter mortars used 120-millimeter mortars against French soldiers.

BULLDOZERS, TOO

Along with the big guns, Cogny said, the Vietminh also are getting a lot of bulldozers from the Chinese. The Vietminh badly need buildozers to repair supply roads from China destroyed by heavy French bombings.

The general said that since the truce in Korea there has been no noticeable stepup in quantities of war ald from the Chinese. But the French say it is quite likely that Chinese as-aistance will be increased, now that the shooting has stopped in Korea, and particularly if a firm peace is worked out.

The possibility is never excluded by the French that the Chinese. by the French that the Children's by using the guise of "volunteers" as they did in Korca, might send soldiers to the aid of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Vietminh. But, Cogny said, thus far there have been no Chinese troop movements toward the Indo-

Chinese border.

LAUNCH NEW PUSH

The French Saturday launched a new drive against the rebels southwest of Haiphong aimed at a company of the wiping out an estimated battalion of the enemy and destroying its bases in that sector of the Red River Delta.

The action was centered be-tween the Vanue and Thaibinh Rivers near Klenan, 12 miles southwest of Haiphong, a key port city of the Gulf of Tonkin for delivery of American supplies to the French forces.

The new action is one of a series recently started by the French to clear the delta of an estimated 50,000 Vietminh regulars and guerrillas holding Vietnamese villages and sabotaging French communications

French communications.
In Saturday's action the French are believed to have encircled three companies of Vietminh. A French army spokesman said that in the first 24 hours of the operation 17 Victninh were killed, 36 captured and 80 suspected guer-

Former Envoy Says Thailand 'Tricking' U.S.

AUGUSTA, Ga.— (2P). Hugh G. Grant, former United States minister to Thailand, said Saturday the alleged smashing of a revolt against the government of Thailand is another example "of the clever and intriguing methods" of the Thei military clique headed by the Thai military clique headed by Prime Minister Pibul Songgram.

"The so-called revolts in Bangkok come with amazing regularity." Grant declared in a statement. "This time the revolt coincided with the arrival in Bangkok of our American umbassador, Gen. Bill Donovan. It was probably staged to impress Ambassador Donovan with the false idea that the Inc leaders are against the Communists, but need more and more American dollars to wage the battle.

"Some months ago," Grant continued, "there was another so-called revolt involving the kidnaping of the Thai Prime Minister Songgram, while the latter was formally receiving an American ship from the United. States charge d'affaires.

"But Songgram was released a few days later and went back to power. There have been several other alleged revolts, but nobody gets hurt and Songgram, who was at the head of the Thai government when the Japs took over continues in power.

Grant said that Songgram was prime minister when he was serving as American minis-ter, that "he (Senggram) pretended to be the friend of America, tried to extract big loans from Washington and then when the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor, went right over on the Jap side and declared war against

Meanwhile, the United States is sending millions of dollars worth of military equipment, as well as economic aid, to Thailand. I predict that most of it, if not all of it, will go right down the drain and a lot of it into the hands of the Communists, if the latter move into Thailand."

'Moon Is Blue' Ban by Navy Stirs Author

HOLLYWOOD-WE. F. Hugh Herbert, author and co-producer of the screen and stage play, "The Moon Is Blue," today agreed with Naval authorities that sailors should not be "exposed to such a shocking state of affairs" as that depicted in the movie.

"I have just been informed that Navy officials have banned the showing of my picture in U. S. ship and shore installations," Herbert said.

"I think the admirals who made this decision are absolutely right. The Moon Is Blue relates the romance of a little girl who happens to be a virgin and who wants to stay that way."

"The only two men in her life respect her innocence. Obviously Navy personnel should never he exposed to such a shocking state of affairs," he concluded.

Plants That Defy Hot Winds

By Bob Gilmore

a tremendous a mount of plant damage throughout Southern California. Heat alone is bad enough but when accompanied by a blast of wind, then your ornamentals are sure to suffer. Nor will water alone solve the problem. One solution is to emphasize those subjects capable of tolerating hot winds.

One of our most aggressive growing sun lovers is plumbago capenesis. It is also one of the real camels of the plant world, thriving for a lengthy period with very little moisture. This is the blue cape plumbago that is extensively used throughout the Southland as a semi-climbing shrub. The growth is a bit wild but careful pruning should keep the plant in good appearance. The flowers are azure blue and look very much like the phlox. As the florets mature they turn from blue to a whitish hue. The plumbago grows to about six feet.

Gerberas, being natives of South Africa, are very much at home in Southern California. They can take hot winds in stride. This is another sun lover and is frequently referred to as the African daisy but perhaps more correctly as the Transvaal daisy. The flowers are splendid for indoor decoration, lasting for days after being cut. Colors range through shades of pink, scarlet, crimson, yellow and orange.

Japanese privet, known botanically as ligustrum lucidum, has an aggressive growing habit and amazingly enough, will do well even in the desert. So don't worry about its health during the hot, windy periods. The plant is widely used as a hedge, its growth being compact and dense.

similar to the Monterey cypress but far better for most landscape uses, grows rapidly and enjoys great popularity as a windbreak. It likes an open exposure and demands practically no attention. The plant is more resistant to fungus and borers than related varieties and in many localities seems to grow better. The plants attain a height of from 15 to 20 feet at maturity. The foliage is silvery

Tamarix parviflora is another wind-resistant subject. It is often used for windbreak purposes. The bark is an interesting shade of red and the foliage is needle-like. In spring and summer medium-pink flowers cover the plant, Portulaca, a native of Brazil, is another heat-enduring subject. This plant is used mainly for ground covering purposes. The flowers are especially gay in tone, including shades of white, pink, yellow, red and purple.

Other subjects capable of tolerating a lot of abuse from sun and wind include helianthus, coreopsis, gazania, statice, salvia splendens, nicotiana, rhus, fremontia californica, salpiglossus, mesembryanthemum, aloe, agave and prunus integrifolia.

A weary -recording engineer popped out of his glass-fronted cubicle. The job already had taken 14 hours.

"What's the matter?" he cried. "It sounded good. I had a perfect mix. Don't stop in the middle of it like that. Let's take it again."

But it was two hours more before The Prisonaires, five Negro convicts from Tennessee State Penitentiary in Nashville. were satisfied with "The Prisoner's Prayer."

Sam C. Phillips, owner-engineer of the Memphis Recording Service, wasn't surprised. He had worked with The Prisonaires before. "That guitarist!" he said. "He's a perfectionist."

Despite the 14-hour session, Phillips was pleased. To his ear, "The Prisoner's Prayer" had that curious mixture of tears and hope that sometimes makes a hit record.

Oddly enough the ballad was money in trust. written for the convicts by a Nashville-cop. James Proctor.

And Gov. Frank G. Clement personally presented The Prisonaires with the guitar used by the baritone and musical director, William Stewart, 31, convicted of murder.

The men travel under strict guard with big prisoner numbers sewn to the backs of their white shirts. Music is their only respite from cellblock routine.

To the Governor, the popular crew is a symbol of "our program of rehabilitation. . . Their musical message is for the people everywhere."

Lead tenor John Bragg. 27 is serving six 99-year terms for six cases of rape; tenor Ed Thurman, 36, drew 99 years for murder; Marcell Saunders, 29, the bass, got one to five years for involuntary manslaughter; John Drue, 27, has three years for grand larceny. Stewart also is serving a 99-year term.

PHILLIPS DREW his unheralded talent from a 10-state area. If any had formal training in music Phillips doesn't know it. Many play homemade instruments.

The biggest strike to date was a violent jazz record, "Rocket 88," which sold 325,000 copies. He distributes under the "Sun"

Phillips treats his "artists" with easy humor and understanding. If they're broke, he feeds them. When he feels the situation warrants, he loans money against future earnings.

The Prisonaires, of course, don't have to float loans. Eating regularly is no concern of theirs.

But suppose their new tune is a hit — may be sells 225,000copies? It would bring them about $3000.

The Still Unconquered South

THE UNCONQUERED, by Ben Ames Williams (Houghton Mifflin, $5).

Travis Currain fights through the Civil War, and then faces the destruction of all his previous ways of life. "The Unconquered" follows the fortunes of those characters who appeared in "House Divided" and some of their fortunes are ill, others at last attain success in adapting to the confusion of postwar politics. New Orleans faced about every type of violence in its reconstruction period, when Negroes were given power over their white masters and the Northern politicians tried to hold it for them. Murder and more murder appears as the answer to the defeated Southerner, and the Negro was the victim.

This is Williams' last novel; he died before it was published. It shows a great depth of understanding of a defeated people, and it carries a sympathy for the unfortunate Negroes who were flung heedlessly into activities for which they had little aptitude. It's a long novel, and when finished it will demonstrate some of the conditionings back of the Southern people that have held them from a complete political reunion for generations.

FREEDOM'S WAY, by Theodora McCormick (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50).

First published in June, this novel is in its third edition and deserves several more. Author McCormick has come up with a most sprightly young woman out of 18th Century history and presented her in an adventurous novel of American Revolutionary times. Caroline Matilda became involved in a court escapade, was condemned to death, got her sentence changed to banishment, and then America presented her with an opportunity for romance and intrigue. Enough of the smooth skin of Caroline Matilda is shown from time to time to invoke interest. But even with all her clothes on, Caroline (Sir, I am not the queen of Denmark!) Matilda is tertainly good company-G. L.

COME, MY BELOVED, by Pearl S. Buck (John Day Co., $3.75).

Nobel Prize winner Pearl Buck, author of many brilliant novels set in China, switches her locale to India for this one but the result is the same: a fine story, ably told.

The tale revolves about an American who goes to India to become a missionary, determined to live as the villagers live; and a son who follows in his footsteps but who rebels when his daughter falls in love with and asks permission to marry an Indian. The spirit of strange India is here, with its caste system, its jungles and deadly snakes and its monsoons.

NOVELS that stack up with the best continue to flow from Ballentine Books, who issue paperbound and hardbound editions simultaneously. These are not to be confused with most pocket-size issues, which are reprints: Ballentine Books are originals, and the appearance of a Ballentine Book is assurance that here is a brand-new story.

Newest Ballentine titles:
"Summer Street," by Hal Ellson; "Indian Country," by Dorothy M. Johnson; "The Secret Masters," by Gerald Kersh; and "Ahead of Time," by Henry Kuttner (35 cents paperbound, $2 hardbound); and "The City of Anger," by William Manchester (50 cents paperbound, $3 hardbound).

HILLSIDE LIVING offers tremendous advantages, but before these are achieved some knotty problems must be solved. That's where a new book, "Sunset Ideas for Hillside Homes" (Lane Pub. Co., $1)-written especially for Californians—comes in. Taken from the pages of Sunset Magazine, here are proven ideas with 100 clear "howto" illustrations and 132 photographs showing how to take fullest advantage of view, space for outdoor living, avoid excessive stair traffic, provide protection from prevailing winds, plan drainage; select plants best suited to sloping gardens, and use of decks and terraces. Anyone planning to build or buy or remodel a hillside home should have this book.

FIGHTING INDIAN WAR-RIORS, by E. A. Brininstool (Stackpole, $5).

Most of the famous Indian battles are relived in all the vivid action of spectacular warfare such as no other continent has ever seen. The Plains Indians were named by accomplished white soldiers as the world's finest cavalry, and the events which led up to their last defiant stands are a matter of history. And this is how many of them fought to the last.

BROTHER TO THE DRAG-ONS, by Robert Penn Warren (Random House, $3.50).

Murder of a Negro slave by the two sons of Thomas Jefferson's sister is the basis for this lengthy narrative poem. The incident occurred on the first day of the series of great earthquakes in December, 1811, in the Mississippi Valley. By having the various persons concerned with the incident, including Jefferson, talk, the author examines the matter from many angles. The depth of the retrospect sometimes verges on obscurity, but altogether the work is scholarly and pleasant to the ear.—P. F.

CEILING UNLIMITED, by Lloyd Morris and Kendall Smith (Macmillan, $6.50).

The story of flight—from that historic December day 50 years ago when the flying machine of the Dayton bicycle manufacturers, Orville and Wilbur Wright, propelled Itself 120 feet from takeoff to landing, up to the supersonic era—is told and pictured in "Ceiling Unlimited." Introduction to the fabulous story is signed by the National Committee to Observe the 56th Anniversary of Powered Flight of which James H. Doolittle is chairman, and there are 116 priceless illustrations including machines and personalities that made history.

TWO CENTURIES of American painting will high light an exhibition of the American Heritage in Art in the Fine Arts Building of Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Sept. 18-Oct. 4.

Millard Sheets, art director for the fair, has combed the nation to assemble a comprehensive collection of American colonial and federal art as well as representative works of significant American painters of the past 50 years and a cross-section of contemporary painting. Most of the important collections and museums of the nation are represented in the show, which will trace from colonial times the roots of American art.

ONE OF THE MAGNETIC religious books of the season is "The Lawgiver" (Exposition Press, $4), a novel about Moses written by Rabbi Julius A. Leibert, formerly of Long Beach. Leibert traces the life of Moses from the time he was found a tiny infant in the bullrushes to his death. His book expands on many absorbing chapters in Biblical history in which Moses played a part. Leibert, it will be remembered, came to Long Beach in 1923, organized Temple Israel, and remained until 1930. He has had 30 years of active and reserve duty with the armed forces, including World War II. Now Rabbi of Temple Beth-El, he resides in Pensacola, Fla, with his wife. _F. T. K, PAINTINGS and ceramics are displayed in a new studio opened by Pansy Jackson at 1028 E. Third St. Studios on the ground floor are available to pupils in wheel chairs, and extra wide doors and a private rear entrance have been planned for their convenience. Day and evening classes in ceramics and painting will be taught this fall with lectures on art, travel and music. Visiting artists also will demonstrate their work.

fritz kocher, vice president of the Painters and Sculptors Club of Los Angeles, will demonstrate landscape painting at the dinner meeting of East Los Angeles Art Club, 4558½ Whittier Blvd., Wednesday evening.

Kocher received his art education at the Academy of Fine Art at Karlsruhe, Germany; at the University of Heidelberg and the Fine Arts Academy in Vienna. His paintings have been purchased by many museums in Europe. He recently won the special jury award at the Tri-Art exhibition at the Greek Theater. Meetings of the East Los Angeles Art Club are open to the public. Membership is county-wide and visitors are invited.

Quake Refugees Protest Return to Home Islands

ATHENS, Greece — (U.P.). Some 2000 refugees from the earthquake shattered Ionian Islands went on a hunger strike at Patras on the Greek mainland Saturday in protest against government plans to send them home.

The refugees' fears about their
"jinxed" islands were renewed Saturday night when strong winds of near-hurricane force whipped through the ruins and flattened many buildings weakened by the quakes.

Rain and wind lashed the is-lands for about three hours and was of such violence that ships anchored nearby were forced to use their engines to hold position. Tent shelters and other temporary protection for the homeless earthquake victims were damaged by the winds. Meanwhile, plans were being made to evacuate 2500 children from the islands to camps on the

of 11 months.

And the slim, blonde, 24-yearold actress, singer, composer and mother has compressed all this into a startling 15 years.

"I decided to have my family first, then a career," Barbara explained.

Since she started acting at the advanced age of nine, it became apparent that further amplification was necessary.

"You see, I was discovered first by Hal Roach for Our Gang comedies, but now I'm starting all over again.'

SHE LIKES TOWN

In spite of her other activities, including a leading part in a forthcoming film starring fellow-Our Gang graduate Mickey Rooney, Barbara is excited about her Long Beach engage-

"Tve always liked Long Beach," she said. 'I used to live in Wilmington and we came here to the beach all the time. Last night as I listened to the band concert I was thinking of how many things you have here that other cities don't provide for their people."

Does she have any plans for her children in show business?

Barbara wrinkled her nose.
"Nope," she said. "No talent in the whole crew."

Angels, Stars Wind Up Hectic Series Today

Tribe Sweeps Yank Series on Lemon's Three-Hit Blank

CLEVELAND—(UP). Looking anything other than a team headed for a fifth straight World Series, the New York Yankees dropped their third straight to the Cleveland Indians Saturday, 6-0.

The triumph completed the Tribe's third series sweep of the year over the champions. Cleveland now has won 10 of its last 21 from New York and six straight at home. The Indians thus became the first team to take the sesason lead over the leaders, 10-9.

This Faulk Beats Riley

The long, hard uphill pull has paid off. Our City College Vikings finally are operating on a balanced budget basis—victory and

On the eve of their 24th season of football competition, the Vikes can point with pride to an all-can point with pride to an alltime record of 95 triumphs, 90 reversals and 25 ties.

There was a time—a long time—when Don Drury. Vike athletic publicity director, dared not look backward for fear of rattling skeletons in the Norse football closet. Therefore, the results of research didn't warrant the effort. But at last it is now different, he gleefully points with pride.

ent, he gleefully points with pride.
"In the post-war era and particularly the Buck Andreasen phase of Viking football history, our school has hurdled the .500 barrier which makes this task of tracing back into the records much more pleasant," he con-fessed. "In fact, now we can point with pride—yeah, and after all these years."

So, for a week or more, Don has kept out of the midday sun by poring over past performances. and his eagle eyes have produced this excellent all-time history, which in part is as follows:

Coach Oak Smill LECC Coach

144 Seal 78 pound 125 first 106 hits, 1

otals 25 15 3 962 600 frand Tils 95 90 25 2801 2331 From the outset in 1928 the battle to square the records was hectic. Coach Oak Smith, City College's first football coach, finally achieved the .500 or better mark in 1931 when the all-time records stood at 14-13-3. Yet the advantage was mo-mentary, nothing more, for Vi-kingville lapsed into new difficulties which were to plague them for many seasons.

THE PENDULUM swung from defeat to victory with the dawn of the post-war era after the Vikings did not field teams in 1943 and 1944. Bob Bronzan keynoted the transition in the 1946 season with a 6-2-0 record, and Eddie Wagner followed with a 19-10-3 record, moving the all-time records ever closer to the .500 mark.

The arrival of Buck Andreasen, replacing Eddie Wagner, did not hint of pleasant things to come, for in his first year he was 4-5-1 at the Viking helm.

Historian Drury, completing his research, was startled to learn that the triumph which squared all Viking teams with their opposition at the .500 mark was, amazingly enough, the stirring victory carved out on Saturday night, Nov. 14, 1950, by the Vi-kings over El Camino, 32-0, before a record crowd of 11,500 fans in Veterans Memorial Stadium. The import of the triumph was lost in the frenzy that accompanied the Norsemen's vic-tory over the Warriors, which carned them a bid to the 1950 Junior Rose Bowl. El Camino went into the Nov. 14, 1950, game with an unbeaten record. The 32-0 climactic battle, Drury noted in blue ink-a radical departure from the red ink used in so many other seasons—was the .500 balance with 81 wins, 81 losses and 23 ties.

Since then, statistician Drury, of facile pen and probing mind, has enjoyed posting Viking football records into history—with blue ink. The postwar resurgence has made the task a happy one. For instance, the Viking record through 1942 was 45-64-19 or a .426 average. Since 1945, the record has been 50-26-6, or .646. A much happier story, indeed.

₩AGNER AND ANDREASEN teams contributed mightily to the football renaissance at City College. The 1946 Wagner team had an 8-2 record in jaysee games, while Andreasen's '50 and '51 teams showed 10-0 and 8-1-1 marks against strictly jaysee foes.

Yet other teams down the long list of Viking football machines gave excellent accounts of themselves. The 1931, '39 and 40 teams finished second in their conference standings—het-tered only by the 1951 team. The '50 team, strangely enough,

Phils' Carpenter Predicts Increase in Night Games

PHILADELPHIA - (P). There may be more night baseball, rather than less of it, in future major league schedules, says owner Bob Carpenter of the Philadelphia Phillies. It could even reach the point where baseball in the sunlight would happen only on Sundays and holidays . . . and in Chicago which doesn't have night baseball in Wrigley Field.

"We've got to play when the crowds are best." Carpenter told reporters. "The statistics show that night baseball draws best. For instance Saturday: Our gates for Saturday night games are much bigger than for Saturday day games.

It would be better for the players, too, I think. They would be able to follow a more regular personal routine than under the present mixed schedule of some day games, some night games, daytime doubleheaders and twi-night twin bills."

"Our offices are now process ing many applicants for these strategic locations scattered throughout the Lakewood community," Berk said.

"With its population exceeding 110,000 Lakewood is an ideal lo-cation for business enterprises." Among the properties in the 3500-acre Lakewood Park area which Berk was appointed to lease are 14 stores under a single roof on Woodruff Ave. near Carson St.

The architectural firm of Amet & Davis are designing the struc-ture with its individualized shop

Berk also is handling the four large corner sites at Del Amo Bivd, and Woodruff Ave., Del Amo and Beliflower Bivd., Carson St. and Paramount Bivd, Beliflower and South St., and Carson and Woodrutt.

He already has leased a site on South St. west of Bellflower Blvd. to 'Ken's Lakewood,' 'a new-type drive-in restaurant.

Leasing agreements have been made for a golf driving range on Carson west of Paramount Blvd. and for several sites for real estate companies. The newest Chevrolet agency to be created in California has just leased a temporary site at Bellflower and South St.

"Other major automotive dealers are studying Lakewood Park for permanent locations," Berk

Previewed to the public last week end for the first time on a "reservation" sales basis, more than $180,000 worth of the FHA three and four-bedroom homes were sold, and the huge crowd which visited the furnished model home indicated that sales would continue strong.

Particularly pleasing to the majority of visitors was the obvious quality of the construction with quanty of the construction with the smart interior finish work ap-parent even to the layman, and the large "work-casy" kitchens which have always been a feature of homes built in Stratford Square by the firm headed by Howard Cunningham.

These Stratford Square homes have been patterned on the likes and dislikes of the home-buying public as revealed in various surpublic as revealed in various surpubli veys over the nation, according to Frank Hart, sales manager for the realty firm.

"We actually made a study of what people wanted in the homes they were looking for, and by working closely with Mr. Cunningham we managed to incorporate into every unit those features most desired by the home-seeking family today," Hart stated.

An example of this planning is the unusually large amount of closet and cupboard space, the interior designs which provide an easy flow of traffic from room to room, the built-in television out-lets, the formica kitchen work table tops, electric bathroom heaters, the stall showers, and the con-tinuous concrete foundation walls.

All of these are features deigned to make the homes better to live in, and as their sales slogan indicates, "built better for longer life."

WASHINGTON-(UR)? The National Association of home builders bluntly advised its 26,000 members last week to stop building any houses unless they receive "firm, preferably written" commitments of financial backing.

The builders accused mortgage lenders-large banks and insurance companies - of failing to "honor" their commitments and thus causing "severe hardship and actual losses" to builders. The builders also charged that some lenders are determined to "extract every ounce of net yield that the distressed condition in the (housing) market will permit."

The NAHB indicated its belief that, unless the now critical mortgage shortage improves in the next few months, Congress may step in and authorize a broader direct lending program by the federal government.

The NAHB thus gave notice of the growing split between builders the growing split between builders and mortgage bankers. Earlier this year the builders reluctantly supported the mortgage bankers' demands that the Eisenhower administration increase in terest rates on FHA and VA-insured mortgages and permit discounting an three learns.

on these loans.

The National Association of Real Estate Brokers backed the NAHB stand "completely." would certainly be prudent for a builder now to know where his money is coming from," said an NAREB spokesman.

The B-Girl film will show how the bar girls "roll" drunks and in misbehave around general cocktail bars. The nudism thing is merely an interview with a nudist. Nothing new about this and certainly the nudist movement can't be called a racket.

Theory behind the show is that Coates will expose graft, gambling and corruption . . . but neither the B-Girl nor the nudist quite quali-

Urges Cops

NEWPORT BEACH (A). Adolph B. Spreckels II, the heir to sugar millions, issued a demand Saturday that police arrest him on a complaint charging that he beat one of his ex-wives, Kay Williams.

"Mr. Spreckels wants to get the show on the road," said his attorney, Daniel Schnabel. "If the prosecution isn't ready to proceed with its case against him, they shouldn't have filed the charge." The attorney told reporters Spreckels feels it's "unwholesome" to have an arrest warrant outstanding against him.

Originally the 41-year-old millionaire was arrested after an altercation at his Newport Beach home Aug. 20. Miss Williams, former actress and model, said they disputed over their two children and claimed that Spreckels beat her with her own shoe. Her doctors said she suffered concussion opinion of all who attended the Ebell Juniors Cotton Ball in the Marine Room of the Wilton Hotel last night, that it was one of the most successful dances in the history of the club. Mammy Dolls, bales of cotton and cotion balls that decorated the room carried out a theme of the Old South. A five-foot stuffed Mammy Doll replaced the old broom dance, and was passed around the dance floor to various couples.

The ones left dancing with the doll instead of a partner were subjected to many witti-cisms during the evening, but all took it in good spirit. Later the smaller Mammy Dolls were given as awards. Bob Calloway and his orchestra were in the spirit of the evening too, and played many south of the Mason-Dixon line favorites and a few cake walks.

Mrs. W. H. Seils, Ebell Junior president, looked like a Southern belle in a gray and pale yellow print with a full skirt. Guests at a cocktail party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seils preceding the dance were Messrs, and Mmes, Larry Quinn, Ted Sullivan, Frank Search and Lloyd Hansen.

Sept. 16 Is Date Set for Style Revue

By MARY LOU ZEHMS

Press-Telegram Women's Editor "An Evening at Moulin Rouge" is the intriguing theme selected for the annual fall fashion show by Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 16, at Balboa Bay Club. This fabulous style production by Buffums', which promises even to exceed in beauty those of the past, will feature creations by continental and American designers, will be displayed by professional models and commented on by John Hersey, Buffums' fashion co-ordinator.

The way you'll look this fall, according to the designers, is beautifully delineated in specialoccasion dresses and interpreted in rich fabrics. The new consciousness of natural figure linesemphasized in their designs demands fabrics which drape and mold to the figure. The sophistication of the styles is underscored with subtle contrasts of fabric texture, with embroidered or jewelled effects, with knowing use of color. It will be a season of tremendous and flattering elegance, or so say the fashion experts.

Why all the emphasis on new clothes? It's for charity. Proceeds from the Auxiliary's show will continue to provide medical care and hospitalization for needy children in the vicinity. In order to maintain 57 beds in the Children's Memorial Hospital, $2000 a month is necessary and approximately $150 a month is needed for medications in the Children's Clinic.

The annual fashion show and the "Have a Heart Carnival" each February are the two fund raising events by members of the Auxiliary, Nightingales, its the Auxiliary, Nightingales, its junior organization, and three affiliated guilds, Las Madrinas, Northern Lights, Fiorellas and junior auxiliary guilds, SFO and Phi Gamma Chi.

In charge of the show are Mrs. Velma Hair, Auxiliary president; Mrs. William C. Abrams, general chairman of the style show; Mrs. A. A. Carrey, co-chairman; Mrs. Richard A. Bixby, ways and means; Mrs. John W. Brooks, hospitality, and Mrs. H. Curtis Cassill, tickets.

In addition to the showing of styles, artists Pat Zieg; soprano, and Harvey Wagner, baritone, will be featured in songs and duets. Vivacious cancan girls.

Luncheon in Bickel Home

Beneath a towering Brazilian pepper tree in the James A. Bickel garden at 4030 Facific Ave., Mrs. Bickel has been entertaining friends at a series of luncheon and afternoon bridge parties. Guests have been seat-ed at quartet tables, shaded by the pepper tree. They viewed the roses, fuchsias and gardenias in a formal garden bordered with white begonias.

For the first party, Mrs.
Bickel used floral arrangements in the home of deep purple and lavender asters and for the last two afternoon affairs, a profusion of roses. Fifty guests have been in attendance at each event in the series of late sum-mer entertaining by Mrs. Bickel.

A bit o' the heathery highlands of Scotland found its way into Virginia Country Club last Sunday when the Earl Burns Millers (she's Loraine) hosted a surprise dinner party for John Halbert, avocational weaver supreme.

Seems that John, in his spare moments, has developed a knack with the loom that would rival the finest craftsmen in the old country. And, in addition to supplying his own wardrobe with luscious tweeds and plaids, he has been weaving yardage for his friends.

These friends, attired in sport coats tailored from John's fabrics, and their wives, were arrayed about the VCC fireplace when the Halberts and Millers

The encouragement and advancement of young organists, one of the prime objectives of the American Guild of Organists, is being realized by the Long Beach Chapter, AGO, at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday, Sept. 1, when it presents Max Miller, brilliant young organist, in a recital at First Baptist Church, 1000 Pine Ave.

Representing the local chapter four years ago in Boston in the National Guild Competition for Young Organists, Miller startled the organ world with his virtuosity and skill in interpreting the organ music of the classicists and modernists. Graduating from Redlands University cum laude in organ, Miller then assumed the duties as organist at First Methodist Church in Pasadena.

Recitals followed in California, New England, Minneapolis, St. Paul, in New York at Columbia University and throughout the country. Now he is associated with the Boston University School of Music as organ instructor.

of Music as organ instructor.

To mark his advancement in the field of composition, of which he has been a student for several years, Miller will play one of his own compositions, partita on "O Man of Grief, Remember Me." The million-dollar, modern architectural design of the First Baptist Church, with its lovely Christ Chapel, will be a perfect setting to hear the modern music of Roger Sessions' Choral Number One and Benjamin Britten's Prelude and Fugue on a Theme of Vittoria. Also on his program is Bach's Prelude and Fugue in A Minor, Franck's Chorale in E Major, Robert Schumann's Canon in C Major, and his Fugue II on Bach.

This program will be played on the First Baptist's large three manual Moller organ, newest instrument in Long Beach, which has 30 ranks with a total of 2000 pipes. ## Family Car Causes Trouble

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: (
Our happy home is being broken up—by an automobile) and a neighbor.

(1) Our neighbor, Mr. Moocher, rides to work with my hus-band—has for one year—but has never once offered to pay his way or buy gas.

(2) If he has an appointment during working hours, he uses our car. Still no gas.

(3) When I do get the car, his wife usually wants to beg a ride to town. I always say no. (Once I disconnected the start-er and drained the tank so he had to drive his own car that

Mrs. Moocher and brats come down here because it is lone-some at home. Now I have six children and don't need the company of her kids.

(5) I suggested the men drive alternating weeks, but no go.

So, I told hubby he should stop letting Mr. Moocher ride and go by himself, letting Mr. Moocher drive his own car. But Moother drive his own car. But hubby says he has to go to work anyway so might as well let Mr. Moocher ride, too.

I have given hubby two weeks to make up his mind. It's either quit driving Mr. Moocher or else take his car and move out of the house.

Please, please, am I right or wrong?—TIRED OF BEING

I'm absolutely on your side. It seems extremely selfish of Mr. Moocher to mooch rides every day—but it seems equally selfish of your husband to take the car every day and leave you car-less when he doesn't have

With a house to run, and six children to look after, you must need the car terribly at times. And why shouldn't you have it when it seems such a simple matter to arrange?

As you say, the only fair thing would be to have your husband use his car one week, and Mr. Moocher his car the next. That would leave you and Mrs. Moocher with a car between you all the time.

I can't understand why you can't get this point across to your husband. Why don't you just announce the new arrangement to Mr. Moocher and hubby, and see what happens then?

Competition Can Stimulate Interest in Churchgoing

By GEORGE W. CRANE .

When the teen-age attendance at all churches in your town can be boosted from 38.5 per cent to 72 per cent, that is news. Notice Superintendent Alexander's unusual challenge to youth. Then see if you can't inject some of this same wholesome, competitive spirit into your own church activities. Contests do for churches what advertising does for department

Case H-372: Gerald Alexander is the very ingenious superintendent of schools at Greensburg, Ind. Last fall he asked 40 of his teachers to take inventory on Monday morning as to how many of their children had attended Sunday school the day

Then they also inqquired how many had attended their Catho-lic mass or Protestant preaching services on that Sunday. The following Monday, the teachers made a second analysis, and then Supt. Alexander averaged

Then Superintendent Alexander announced to his high schoolers that a memorial elec-tric organ had been offered by the John F. Goddard award fund. if the students would either maintain an average church attendance of 75 per cent for four consecutive Sundays. or at least 70 per cent for five straight Sundays.

The student council accepted the challenge and picked the month of November for their contest. Sunday school attendance could not be substituted for church attendance in winning the prize.

Remembering that their average church attendance had been 38.5 per cent on the preliminary October survey, now notice how October survey, now notice how this contest zoomed their presence in church: Nov. 9, 65.05 per cent; Nov. 16. 72.96 per cent; Nov. 23, 71.54 per cent; Nov. 30, 71.02 per cent; Dec. 7, 80 per

Well, Superintendent Alexander, I salute you for this stimulating experiment. It shows how the public schools can help

It also proves how contests will "pep up" churches! It suggests, too, that the clergymen will be encouraged to "pep up their brand of oratory, and make dramatic, narrative ser-mons to hold the attention of teen-agers.

For even though you teachers have delivered a ready-made audience to the clerics, they can't expect to keep them coming after the end of the contest unless their platform addresses prove so interesting that the teen-agers want to attend there-

Persist at Unbid Suits

It is usually wise for the defenders to hammer away at the unbid suits. This puts it up to declarer to lead his bid suits by himself, giving the defenders their best chance to win tricks in those bid suits.

The most common exception to this rule occurs when a player leads a short suit, hoping to get a ruff before his trumps can be drawn. Far less common, because seldom recognized, is the situation in which the partner has to lead the bid suit in order to obtain the ruff for the partnership. Before we get tangled up with partners and suits, let's study the situation in an example.

West began by taking two rounds of hearts and then looked around for new worlds to conquer. South was obviously out:

of hearts, so there was no great value in continuing that suit.
The bidding made it clear that South had nine cards in his two South had nine cards in his two bid suits, which left room for only two clubs in the South hand. There was therefore no future in leading clubs.

By the process of elimination, West came to the conclusion that there might be something in a switch to diamonds. He was pretty sure that his partner had only two diamonds, and the sit-uation was therefore promising. Hence at the third trick West led the seven of diamonds. East promptly took the ace of diamonds and returned the suit.

monds and returned the suit.

This was exactly what West had been hoping for. He could now promptly win the first round of trumps and lead a third round of diamonds for his partner to ruff. This imaginative defense set an otherwise ironciad. contract..

For in true skipper fashion, and with placid calm, he "lords and masters" the boat while Mrs. Bechler, their three sons and two daughters do the chores. Clubwise he has a rare distinction, too. He has never been known to play a round of golf at Virginia Country Club, nor make use of the "gym" facilities at the Pacific Coast Club, yet he holds memberships

Tips on How to Buy Coats

By ALICIA HART

Fall coat-hunting time is here. Since you're seen in a coat perhaps half of your waking hours as long as chilly weather lasts. it's a crucial purchase from a beauty angle. These shopping tips may help you:

1. If you wear a suit under a coat, wear one while trying the coat on. (If the weather's too warm to wear a suit while shopping, have the borrow a suit for this purpose from the store's stock.)

2. Do you want the coat for country or city wear? Tweed, plaids checks and stripes are for country, while flannel, broadcloth, doeskin, cashmere, wool Cheviot, fleece, boucle, and velour are city fabrics.

3. Black, brown, navy, gray and beige are your basic colors. There are very few women into whose wardrobes red, green or gold coats fit well. Have a list of your wardrobe colors with you and consider them all when choosing a coat color.

4. Fur trim adds to the ex-4. Fur trim adds to the ex-pense of a coat and limits its usefulness. Such a coat is gen-erally too dressy for all-day wear but not dressy enough for evening.

5. If you're under 35, ask yourself if the coat is sophis ticated enough for you. If you're over 35, beware of a matronly coat and be sure it has an air of youth about it.

Following the "strictly social" phase of the evening, the Rotarians heard some terrific talks by well qualified speakers on the narcotics problem and then came the panel discussions.

Where there are discussions there had better be moderators and there were. Keeping everything under control, conversation-wise, were George Hedley, Art Macrate, "Norb" Dean, Bob Crow, Howard Hatfield, Roy Green Jr., Dr. Sid Ellery, Al Vignolo, Roy Linton, Bob Irvin and Bob Sully.

"The postman always rings twice." In this case, we're ringing the second time for him. If you received a blue envelope sans contents but with the return address of 6715 E. Seaside Wk. you received an invitation, invisible but nonetheless sincere, from Sallie Van Dyke.

Seems that Sallie, who is having a series of five lovely affairs, discovered the nerve-shattering mistake of the envelopes-that-got-away-without-enclosures and then had no way of checking to whom they went. So, dear friends, be kind to your hostess and call her up. Be very kind to yourself at the same time by finding out which party you are invited to attend!

Evelyn Harris and Gladys Ellis found out how far a golf ball would travel in the atmosphere at Ventura this last Wednesday. Just about as far as in the ozone at Long Beach they reported when they returned Thursday. Fun anyway.

Whenever any one of the five Linde sisters has a birthday it's the signal for a party and this has been going on for years. Last night the gals turned the tables on their spouses, who have voiced a certain wistful envy from time to time, and gave them a combined birthday party that was a "doozy." It was in the form of a certain wistful envy from time to time, and gave them a combined birthday party that was a "doozy." Working on the assumption that well fed people have better ideas than hungry people, Dental Auxiliary ways and means chairman, Elaine Ulrich, and co-chairman, Elaine Smith, got their committee members together Thursday for luncheon. Afterwards the two chairmen sat back with pencil, paper and a knowing look and just copied good ideas down as fast as they could write.

"Hawt dawg" cried the guests and hot dogs they got—till they couldn't hold another morsel. And considering they were of the 9-year-old boy variety guests, that's quite a number of "dawgs," you'll admit. It's Tuesday we're referring to and the swimning and barbecue party Betty and Jim Munholland gave for Jim Jr.'s

How to Care for Jewelry

by carcless packing and treatment during the carefree vacation season. Here are some tips on its care, compiled by the Jewelry Academy:

Diamonds: Never jumble loosely together in a jewelry box, as diamonds, the hardest substance in nature, can scratch each other. After a summer of storing, bring them to life again by washing them with warm soapy water, dipping in alcohol, draining on tissue paper.

Emeralds: A precious stone that breaks easily, needs special care in handling and storing. Should not be tossed loose in Good jewelry can be damaged jewel case with other stones. Turquoise: Breaks easily, should never be allowed to come in contact with soap or grease, which discolors the stones.

Pearls: Need special care. May be damaged by heat, perspiration or grease. Should be kept in separate jewel case, restrung every three months with knots between each pearl.

All jewelry: Should be checked at least once a year by your jeweler, to test for loose stones, bent catches, minor repairs. Though your jewelry is insured, today's replacement value is so high that what you recover probably wouldn't cover its present value

Miss Powers Is Regal in Embroidered Tulle

Miss Beatrice Miriam Powers, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Powers Sr., of 800 Tehachapi Dr., became the bride of Kenneth John Stracke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Stracke. Sr., of 2721 Pasadena Ave., in an impressive ceremony Aug. 22 in St. Barnabas Catholic Church. Rev. Thomas J. Feley officiated in the presence of many friends of the popular pair.

The bride was regal in her gown of white tulle which was delicately embroidered with sprays of lilies of the valley. It was styled with fitted bodice and voluminous tulle skirt over multiple petricoats. She was es-corted to the altar by her father for the double ring ceremony. For "something old" she carried her mother's handmade lace handkerchief which she had carried at her wedding.

Her sweetheart crown, smocked in seed pearls, held the full-length veil that cascaded softly into the sweep train. Her bouquet was a white orchid surrounded by lilles of the valley.

In the bridal party were Kay Powers, sister of the bride, maid of honor: Joyce Crowe, Mary Lou Ruchti and Diane Swanson, stunningly attired in yellow ballerina-length gowns of silk antique shantung. They carried blue water lilies and their headpieces were wreaths of dainty yellow blossoms. Miss Powers carried contrasting water lilies. Janet Haines and Terry Lowder, flower girls, were dressed alike and carried blue water lilies and white daisies. The daisy motif was repeated in their dresses of yellow net.

Elmer B. Stracke Jr. of Detroit, Mich., served his brother as best man. Guests were seated prior to the ceremony by Al Fruyog, Ted Misener and Paul Powers Jr., brother of the

Prayer, Effort Can Upset

Q-"My next-door neighbor's 10-year-old boy has been stricken with polio. The doctors say he'll never walk again though he may reach the braces and crutches stage.'

"His mother is a religious fanatic. She keeps telling the boy not to give up his nope. She promises prayer will ac-complish what the doctors don't complish what the doctors don't even predict. Do you say it's right to hold out to a child such false hope?"—Miss M. N. A.—How can you call her hope "false"? Every day seeming miracles are happening. A youth stricken with polio at the age of seven was doomed by doctors to "braces and crutches", for life. He used these 20 years. Then he heard of a physician who had also studied to become a mechanical engineer.

The young man went to him and faithfully followed this doctor's directions even though doing so meant long hours of terrific struggle against physical odds. Not only did it require hope and faith but work, many long tedious hours of work which might not have accomplished anything, as he well knew. But he may have kept in mind that verse in the Bible:

"For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also."
From earliest childhood I have believed that prayer can help overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles. But I also believe we must do all within human power to help make the answer to prayer possible.

Prediction

In other words the mother whom you speak of should not merely pray for her lad's recovery but do everything she can to keep the boy's courage and strength strong and to work with the doctors no matter how difficult the task they prescribe may prove to be. "To him that worketh is the reward," was the promise made many hundreds of years ago.

THE HUNTINGTON SCHOOL

1416 EAST OCEAN BOULEVARD

"Say mama:" Mrs. Davis cooxes Lucky to speak. "I want mama," says Lucky.

MR. LUCKY (left) appears to be speechless as he looks at Babe, his wife, and their family. Scientists, who've heard Mr. Lucky talk, have said: the pattern and rhythm of his vocal expression are amazing; Mr. Lucky makes sounds like those of a year-old child.

A remarkable report on a pet that says real words

MIDVALE, Utah. NE MORNING Joella Davis finished the breakfast dishes and went next door for a chat. As soon as she stepped in the house, her neighbor said, "Someone's calling you, Joella.'

"You must be mistaken," said Mrs. Davis. "There's nobody home but the dog."

But Mrs. Davis listened anyway. She heard a funny, small voice say, "Aw, come on home now."

Mrs. Davis and her neighbor went to investigate. As she says now, "We nearly died when we found who was talking. It was the dog!"

That was eight years ago. Recently, Mr. Lucky, Mrs. Davis's black-and-white, Boston bulldog, was signed to a 20-week contract by Hollywood producer-actor John Shelton for $1,000 a week.

What He Says

URING the years, Lucky actually has devel-. oped a 20-word vocabulary. Scientists say he has a speech center in his brain as good as a one-year-old child's. Already they are clamoring for a chance to study his brain when he dies.

Mrs. Davis doesn't try to teach Lucky any words. But she does try to get him to repeat the words she says he learns himself. Examples:

"I want some"-when he's lost his ball under the couch or is begging for food. (He can't pronounce "s", so it sounds like: "I want 'ome.")

"I won't"—when he is displeased.

"I will"-when he likes something.

"I want my mama." The first time Lucky said this was when Mrs. Davis picked up a friend's baby to admire him.

"Oh dear, oh dear"-when he's distressed at being locked in the cellar or left behind at home.

Lucky's ability to talk may come from his tongue which is different from that of other dogs. It curls oddly at the end.

How He Does It

TALKING SEEMS to be quite a strain for Lucky. He breathes heavily, using his diaphragm like a trained singer. Before the words come out he groans and grunts and sobs.

His speaking voice, which has been recorded by Dr. William Perkins, of the University of Southern California's Speech Clinic, is small, high and light, like a mama doll's.

Otherwise, he has a low growl and bark.

Lucky.won't have anything to do with other dogs except for his bride, Babe (see picture).

So far the Davises haven't decided what to do with the $20,000 Lucky will earn. They haven't let it change their modest way of living-

But J. T. Davis, an inspector for Kennecott Copper Railway, says: "Probably, Lucky will pipe up some morning and tell us how he wants the money spent!"

He Took One Shot

WASHINGTON, D.C.

BEHIND A MASSIVE DESK in the Pentagon, a black-browed general named Nathan Farragut Twining plots worldwide strategy for the U.S. Air Force. Most airmen are familiat with the rungs of command Gen. Twining has climbed to reach a seat on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

But only a few know that "Nate" Twining can shoot as straight as he can think.

On Jan. 26, 1943, Gen. Twining, in command of the 13th Air Force in the South Pacific, was a passenger on a B-17 Flying Fortress that ditched in stormy seas.

• Twining and others scrambled into life rafts—seven in one and eight in another. They lashed the rafts together and drifted on the open sea for six days...

Telling the story, another officer, Maj. Craig Seasholes says*: "We didn't have a mimeograph machine to publish the order, and General Twining never bothered to make public announcement that he had assumed command. He led without benefit of band or ceremony, for his leadership was a natural leadership."

Suddenly . . . a Bird

On the fourth day, Gen. Twining's leadership was put to the test. Out of the sky soared a lone albatross. It circled and passed near the bobbing rafts.

The men were ravenously hungry. The albatross was food—if they could get it.

Men grabbed for guns to fire at the bird. But ammunition was precious and Gen. Twining ordered them not to fire. Then he reached for his own .45 automatic which was sloshing in the raft's bilge.

• Wiping the gun carefully with one hand, Gen. Twining stood up in the raft. It was bouncing crazily. If he missed, no one knew when they would see food again. Carefully, Twining took aim. It was a long shot. Now the bird was 40 yards away (almost half the length of a football field). It was flying low, in a straight line 20 feet above the water.

Gen. Twining squeezed the trigger. The .45 barked. It was a hit! The big bird spun, then dropped like a rock.

Says Seasholes: "I will always remember how that albatross dropped. The bullet had gone right through its head . . . Some shot!"

 Two years ago, while managing the International League Buffalo Bisons in a night-time double-header at Ottawa, baseball's great player-manager George "Specs" Toporcer started to go blind.

It cut short, at 52, a diamond career that skyrocketed from New York City sandlots to the St. Louis Cardinals and included the Boston Red Sox, the Chicago White Sox and a place in the International League's Hall of Fame.

Fans wondered "How did Specs take it?" "What's left in life for a baseball pro when he loses his sight?" "Did Specs' personal tragedy crush him?"

Here, in one of baseball's warmest and most human stories, is how Specs won his toughest game.

"That's where Specs lives!" they say, grinning. He's their hero.

Besides knowing guys like Eddie Stankey, Casey Stengel and Leo Durocher, he writes baseball stories!

Here are only a few of the things he has done since going blind:

- Won a "Man of the Year" award for manliness.
- Written a whole series of sports articles.
- Traveled thousands of miles giving baseball talks to Rotary, Kiwanis, sports and school clubs.
- Appeared, chatty and high-spirited, on TV shows.
   Re-learned to type, and play golf (see right).

Drop into the happy-go-lucky, trophy-strewn home any evening after the papers arrive and you'll think you're in a baseball fan's heaven.

There sits Mrs. Topotcer with her newspaper -- reading the box scores out loud!

Sitting relaxed, listening to her, is a lanky, athleticlooking man in a white shirt and sport slacks. It's hard to realize—except when he fails to notice you—that he's blind. It's Specs.

Romping in and out, already baseball-wise, are his granddaughters, Cheryl and Diane Lettau. His daughter, Ruth, and her husband, Ed Lettau, are usually somewhere close by.

You get the idea that blindness doesn't matter.

Most people never knew it, but Specs battled his bad eyes almost before he knew a baseball from a balloon. He started playing in vacant lots on New York's East Side when he was six. By the time he was 12, he was going to eye clinics and wearing glasses as thick as the bottoms of milk bottles. When he graduated from P.S. 158 with a kid named Jimmy Cagney (who later grew up to be a movie star), he was already known as "Four Eyes."

He Almost Didn't Play

THE ATHLETIC director wouldn't even let me on the team," Specs recalls, "until one day only 8 kids showed up for a game. They let me play." He made a great, running catch of a line drive and was "in"

He had something even more important to baseball than perfect sight: he had guts, brains and a love of the game that made him hike 10 miles on summer afternoons to sit on Coogan's Bluff and root for John J. McGraw and the Giants.

To be sure of getting to play, he organized a kids' neighborhood team called the "Winsteads."

"We were all poor kids," he says. "We ran raffles to help buy uniforms and bats." His mother saved up premium soap wrappers for a year to get him a glove, and he saved his money for months until he got 35¢ to buy some second-hand spikes for his shoes. "I remember," he said, "that I sneaked down to a vacant field and looked around to be sure nobody was looking. I put on the spikes and ran around for an hour, just out of sheer joy!"

greatest battle of his life

By the time he was 15, he was batting .500 and drawing the attention of semi-pro scouts.

Most bigtime players reach the major leagues via the minors. Specs jumped to the Cardinals directly from semi-pro ranks.

But his heavy glasses almost kept him out of the Cardinal line-up. Fans had never seen a major league infielder in glasses. Specs trained with the Cards in the Spring of 1921, was sent to the Syracuse Chiefs for three weeks and hustled back to the Cards again after hitting .338. He stayed for a total of 71/2 years, leading the National League in pinch-hitting in 1926 with a .409 average.

GOLF, played before he went blind, had to be learned all over again (see story).

His had eyes caught up with him when he was least prepared. In 1945, his 16-year-old son, Bob, died. Specs was heartbroken.

Two years later, when he was farm director for / the Boston Red Sox, he started going blind in the left eye. "The doc said I had a 'detachment'-a tearing of the retina from the eyeball," he says. "I spent from January to March 1948 in a hospital having two operations. They didn't work." He came out of Over 3 years later, he had a similar "detachment"in his right eye. He had perfect vision in that eye when he became manager of Buffalo in 1951-and boomed them from the basement of the International League to second place.

"Then came that night in Ottawa," he says. "It seemed like the end of the world. My eye had bothered me a few days." During the game he realized he couldn't follow the ball! Now, his right eye was going.

He was flown to a doctor in Buffalo, and then to a hospital in New York. The Bisons finished the season without him. Around Thanksgiving, in football weather, he came home in the dark.

"I'll admit I felt whipped," he says. "I kept wondering how Mabel and I could finish paying for the house. What could I do for a living? How could I tell her that now she had a blind man for a husband?"

Here's Your Chance

E HAD underestimated Mrs. Toporcer. Named Madelaine Pilegard when he married her on New Year's Eve, 1922, she has been called "Mabel" ever since. Mabel, who was only 18 (and hated baseball), became what every baseball husband needs-a wife who can take life's ups and downs.

She cried when Specs told her he was permanently blind-but she started planning for him.

After she brought him home in the family car, she said, "Stop being gloomy! You always wanted to write about baseball. Well, here's your chance!"

"How?" asked Specs.

"I'll find out," said Mabel.

Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, gave him a typewriter and a recorder, and Mabel showed him how to use them: "write" his stories by speaking them into the recorder. Then she typed them. (In time, he learned to type for himself. Now Mabel just checks mistakes and types clean copies for editors.)

Mabel Became His Eyes

O KEEP him in touch with the game, she got him a portable radio and took him to broadcast games. "I can sit in the stands," he says, "and imagine all the plays. I knew almost all the players before I lost my sight." Before games, Mabel takes him down to the dugout to shake hands and talk baseball.

To keep him exercising, his sister, Betty, helped him to play golf again (by guiding him, handing him a ball and a club and describing the shot needed). On greens, they rattled the flag in the cup so he could judge its position by sound. Today, with a good caddy, he can play in the low 100's-100 on a familiar

What about the house mortgage? Last summer, old basebail friends like Tom Yawkey, Gabe Paul, Walter Briggs, Marvin Jacobs and Joe McCarthy organized benefit games for him at Buffalo and Rochester. Both games paid the mortgage and gave Specs something to coast on.

Specs is a whole man today. "I'm an optimist who loves life," he chuckles. "After all, we see with our minds rather than with our eyes."

For every handicapped person, he has a message: "Don't give in to self-pity and idleness. Work!"

MEDICINE

Behind "Danger" sign, Sloan-Kettering researchers like the ane above, work to find a new weapon against cancer.

NA FEW WEEKS, you'll be hearing people say: "I don't know what's wrong with me, it's probably a virus."

"Virus" has become a catchall phrase throughout the U.S. meaning any one of dozens of sicknesses.

But you may not have realized this: the tiny, ever-present virus, so small it cannot be seen in a microscope, might someday save your life.

For years, medical science has used virus vaccines to provide immunity from smallpox, rables, Rocky Mountain spotted fever and other diseases.

But today, doctors are hot on the trail of new ways to use the virus-to lick still other fatal dis-

Perhaps the most dramatic virus experiments take place in cancer hospitals and clinics behind closed doors like the one at the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research in New York (see picture).

Live Virus Used

ERE A dramatic story is unfolding of how the virus may someday become a potent weapon against cancer.

Doctors, using what they call "hot" (live) viruses, have found in animal tests that certain viruses bypass healthy cells and "attack" cancer cells.

So now medical researchers are trying desperately to find some way of safely and effectively injecting "live" viruses into people who have cancer-in the hope the viruses will destroy or stop the growth of human cancer cells.

By ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

So far, Sloan-Kettering reports having used a certain virus on 26 people who have cancer.

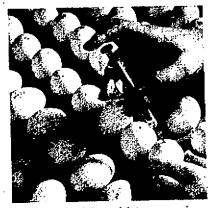

Of these, the virus "took" in 19 patients. But just four of them showed "substantial" decrease in the size of the cancer.

The possibility of the virus not "taking" is one of many problems doctors have found in using the virus to combat cancer.

Another is immunity itself.

When a patient is given a particular virus, that makes him immune to it in any future treatment.

The cancer patients in this experiment were given the virus only because no other treatment would help them.

TEST drug is injected into some virusinfected eggs to discover whether it will kill off the virus.

In polio, other dramatic studies hold out hope that a virus vaccine may be developed - in a year or two - that will provide immunity from the disease.

Already, experiments are beingconducted with people to see if an experimental vaccine works.

One doctor, on the University of Pittsburgh medical school staff, has said: "Progress (with the vaccine) has been more rapid than we had any right to expect."

After a long series of tests with animals, the experimental vaccine has been given to more than 100 children and grown-ups. The vaccine is thought to have given the people resistance to polio for several months.

He's Tricky

THE PITTSBURGH doctor cautioned that a workable polic vaccine will come faster, "if we move cautiously."

"Accomplishment of our purpose cannot be achieved in a day,"

The influenza story is different from cancer or polio.

While there are influenza virus vaccines on the market now, their usefulness is limited.

That's because of a curious fact: the flu virus is a tricky character. He can find ways of making himself immune to vaccines.

So doctors are doing research now (most of it hush-hush) to find new vaccines that will lick the elusive flu virus.

MOTORING

Do You See Ghosts in the Road?

An expert reveals: some drivers see phantom animals, houses, bridges . . . And these are phantoms that can kill you at night

SAW SPIDERS On the wind-shield"...

"In the middle of the road I saw a calf" . . .

"In front of me I saw a herd of mules in bright harness" . . .

"I came to a little bridge. But there seemed to be no way to drive onto it."

Have you ever seen "road ghosts" like these when you're driving, dog-tired, along a road at night? Many motorists have, and probably wondered afterward how they could dream with eyes wide open.

Clue to Mystery Deaths?

HESE STRANGE VISIONS are being studied by some leading highway scientists.

The scientists are beginning to conclude that such hallucinations may explain a lot of highway accidents that have been mysteries up to now.

One of these scientists is Alfred Moseley, of the Harvard Univ. School of Public Health. A psychologist, Moseley is an authority on the unexpected mental quirks that drivers have — quirks that experts now believe may lead to fatal smash-ups.

Moseley, reporting to the American Psychological Association's meeting in Cleveland this week, calls these imaginary road blocks

"hypnogogic hallucinations."
That's a big term.

It means: hallucinations which occur in the moment between sleeping and waking—as though you actually saw a dream through still-open eyes.

Here's how drivers, questioned by Moseley during his research, told what they'd seen:

b "Just before sunrise," said one driver, "when the sky is just beginning to get light and I'm having a hard time keeping awake, sometimes I see the whole area of the windshield suddenly covered with red lines that look like millions and millions of red spiders with big, long legs. Then they all disappear. I've seen those spiders over and over again."

Another driver said: "I was tooling down a long, straight road in the Southwest desert late at night. I was sleepy, and to rest my eyes I closed them (a dangerous thing to do) and started counting '1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

"When I had counted to 4 I suddenly saw a big house right in the middle of the road. I turned sharply to avoid hitting it—and woke up in a gully."

Said a third driver: "The other night I was driving up from San Antonio and I was very tired. I hadn't had enough sleep during the day and I was fighting to keep awake. All of a sudden I saw, right in front of me, a tree growing out of the middle of the road. I don't know how it got there.

"There wasn't enough room to go around it and stay on the road. I had a hard time stopping to keep from hitting it. When I got out to look, there wasn't any tree."

The Bridge Case

"I've seen some peculiar things on the road at night." I once saw a bridge ahead — but it was turned across the road and there was no way you could possibly drive onto it.

"I stopped to figure out how to get on the bridge, then got out to look. There was no bridge. The cool night air sort of revived me and I realized that I'd been going to sleep at the wheel."

Driver after driver told Moseley of similar hallucinations. One, who had been worried about hitting stray cattle on a western road, saw a calf—and wrecked his car trying not to hit it. (But there was no calf.)

What causes such hallucinations? They come, says Moseley, from fatigue, strain or worry. A man who said he was worried about union troubles saw imaginary logs blocking the road.

So many drivers have reported such hallucinations that experts think they can happen to anyone who is over-tired.

What to Look For

1—You may fail to recognize familiar surroundings. You may find yourself wondering for a moment: "On what road am I, and where?" This happens to many drivers. It's a sure sign of exhaustion

2-Be on your guard if you feel you have seen a certain place before, yet are sure you have never been there.

3-You may face trouble if signs or signals fail to register as they should. You may see a red light, for instance, and fail to realize as quickly as you should that it means "stop!" Psychologically, this means your insight has lapsed.

When you find such things happening, look out! If your eyes or' thoughts begin to deceive you in the slightest way, Moseley says, you should:

"Get off the highway and get some sleep. Because if you don't, you're heading right for the ditch -or worse!"

"GHOST HOUSE" loomed like this in the middle of the road, one motorist reported. It's a typical hallucination, often caused by fatigue, worry, strain.

DEEP-DISH APPLE RAISIN PIE

- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking taploca
- 34 cup granulated sugar
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- ¼ leaspoon salt
- i teaspoon cinnama
- V₂ teaspoon nutmeg
- 10 cups thinly sliced fait apples
- 1/2 cup raisins
- ⅓ cup water
- 2 lablespoons butter or margarine
- Pastry for one-crust pie

Combine tapioca, sugars, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, capples, raisins and water. Turn mixture Into deep 8-inch square baking dish. Dot with butter or margarine. Roll pastry 1/2-inch thick and cut several slits near center. Fold pastry in half or roll loosely on rolling pin. Center on filling. Open slits with a knife. (Well-opened slits are important to permit escape of steam during baking.) Trim pastry, allowing it to extend 1/2 inch over rim. Fold pastry and fute. Bake in hot oven, 425 F., 45 minutes.  Before the serenade: Hollywood's Dawn Addams gets an idea of just how good a singer luis is. He's wearing 115 ribbons Madrid's pretty girls have given him. But Miss Addams surprised him...

2. To soft strains of a violin, Luis begins his romantic serenade to Dawn . . .

One kiss may change SPAIN

A U.S. girl pulls a surprise

MADRID, Spain.

HEN A BOY serenades a girl here, he gets a flower or a ribbon—but never a kiss!

That's the way it's been for centuries.

Take Luis Gonzales. He's a good singer and

No. I favorite of Madrid's senoritas. His love songs have won him 115 ribbons from girls—but only ribbons.

Luis got his 116th ribbon not long ago, and this time there was something new. For the first time in his life, his song won a kiss.

Who kissed him? No Spanish senorita, but Hollywood's own Dawn Addams (who played in "The Robe" and "The Moon is Blue").

It happened this way.

Conrad Hilton, U.S. hotel tycoon, brought 100 U.S. celebrities here to open his new hostelry, the Castellana-Hilton. Dawn Addams was one of them.

Luis serenaded her. Alert to Spanish custom, Miss Addams gave Luis an autographed ribbon.

Then, to the wonder of Madrid and the delight of Luis, Miss Addams kissed him!

That American kiss may change a lot around here. Said one American: "After Dawn Addams, what Spanish boy would settle for a ribbon?"

Obviously impressed, she writes her name on his 116th ribbon.

4. She pins it to his costume. And then came a bonus Luis did not expect.

5.... A great big American kiss! It may upset Spain's whole "no-kiss" tradition...

VETERANS! Here's how you can trade spare time for Retirement Income

TAKE AN ACTIVE PART IN THE ARMY RESERVE

It takes only 15 days of summer camp plus 40 hours of additional Reserve activities every year to guarantee a lifetime income for yourself and your family

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO:

- L. Join a unit of the Army Reserve.
- 2. Earn 50 or more credit points a year. You get 1 credit point for each training assembly, and for each day of summer camp. You'll receive 15 points just for being active. Additional points are easily earned for home-study courses, equivalent duties and other activities that require only a small amount of your leisure time.
- Remain active and earn 50 points a year until you have 20 satisfactory years. All your service counts toward retirement although 20 years with 50 or more points each year are required.

ACT NOW!

CONTACT THE U.S. ARMY RESERVE UNIT INSTRUCTOR IN YOUR CITY, OR THE NEAREST U.S. ARMY RECRUITING STATION

HERE'S WHAT YOU GET:

- The pay of your grade or rank for each training assembly or day at camp while in a unit. Some Reservists not in units also have a chance to go to camp if they are active otherwise. You may also go to Army schools, etc.
- 2. Here's an indication of the retirement income you may earn and receive every month at age 60:

Master Sergeant $65.27
Sgt. 1st Class $55.48 Private 1st Class $32.63
Sergeant 50.58 Private (E-2) 26.64
Corporal 42.40 Private (E-1) 21.09

Figures were compiled using the following basis as a many age of entry into write, 22; active duty time, 3 years earned points per year, 60. Your retirement pay will be based on your rating at the time you retire.

DID YOU KNOW...

Since June 19, 1951 a total of 8 years service is required of all persons enlisted, inducted or appointed in the Armed Forces. Required active service is for 2 years, followed by 6 years in the Ready Reserve (where you are subject to recall by the President).

However, if a veteran takes an active part in the Ready Reserve Training Program for 3 years—he may then transfer to the Standby Reserve for the remainder of his 8 years required service. The Standby Reserve is subject to recall only in an emergency declared by Congress.

YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS YOU!

WOMEN! Find out about the benefits to you when you join the WAC Reserve. No prior military service required. YOUNG MEN! #### STOPS FOGGING

• To clean and prevent fogging of eyeglasses, mirrors, windows and windshields, there's a liquid you spray on, then wipe right off. One application, maker says, stops steaming for 1 to 5 days. It also keeps surfaces dust-resistant for long periods and is said to restore optical brilliance to transparent glass, mirrors, glazed enamel and high lustre finishes. Comes in 1% oz. squeeze bottle (97¢) and pocketsize applicator (49¢). BUCKLEY CORP., 607 5th Ave. New York 17. N. Y.

TV PROTECTOR

 You can guard your TV set against lightning and at the same time, stop flickering, specks, noise and other interference caused by static electricity. A complete TV protector does the trick, maker says. Fits any type lead-in and can be installed with just a screwdriver. Maker claims it also alerts you if there's any internal grounding. $3.50. ### Is This the Car of the Future?

Long Beach designer Bill Crabtree won a scholarship with this drawing of tomorrow's car. He says it provides quieter ride, more traction and more roadability.

THE CAR of the future will be maneuverable so that it can be parked easily, and functional so that it can travel fast in heavy traffic. It will be highly specialized, and it is likely to be somewhat smaller than present day cars.

So believes an enthusiastic 18-year-old, William King Crabtree - "Bill" to his friends who has been interested in cars all of his life, and has sketched cars much of his life.

By Vera Williams

Bill, 933 Terraine Ave., was one of the five winners of a national contest sponsored by Motor Trends magazine for new car designs. His award is a four-year $2000 scholarship to the Los Angeles Art Center, starting with the term beginning Sept. 28.

Guess what he will do at the Art Center?

"Design cars, mostly," says Bill.

When Bill read about the contest in the spring, he already had most of the work done because he had been accumulating drawings for a couple of

"I bundled off a portfolio of 25 or 30 sketches and 10 finished drawings, and got in just under the wire," says the lanky 6-foot 1-inch youth who works at a service station at 3565 Pacific Coast Hwy.

His prize-winning drawing of a coupe done in two-tone gold and black, appears under the heading, "From Dream to Drawing Board to . . . " in the current issue of Motor Trends.

THE MAGAZINE ARTICLE accompanying the drawing says: "William King Crabtree, Long Beach, designed and engineered for the future with these prinand comfort of the public, Born zin Oklahoma 18 years ago, William Crabtree is approaching automotive design with ideas well ahead of his years. He believes in simplicity of style, maximum safety and design that is practical, attractive, comfortable yet low in cost.

"His coupe looks nearly 'sonic' in concept, but it utilizes all the desires of the designer, who feels that this car could be developed in the next 10 years.

"The rear-engined car would be the size of present cars in the low-price class. Controls are centrally located. As the door retracts into the rear fender, the window panel is raised. Airscoops are more than decoration; scoops on the sides cool the engine and the brakes; an airscoop on the car's roof provides fresh aid for the air-conditioning system. The fact that this car, and variations of it, are designed to seat either two or four people at the most is an indication of the trend to specialization in our cars of the future."

In Bill's model, the seats would be separate and adjustable, similar to bus seats. Each seat also would have a safety belt.

He planned the car for commercial use, and thinks it would make an excellent police car.

How fast would it go?

"I don't know," admits Bill. "I'm a designer, not an engineer."

Bill Crabtree, 18, points to "spread" in Motor Trend magazine in which his prize-winning drawing appeared.

Where Is Southern California?

Southern California, with its mountains, its deserts, its beaches and its climate is a wonderland — yet, ask any 10 residents to name the boundaries of the area in which they live, and you'll get 10 different answers

The main difficulty encountered in defining Southern California is the fact that different groups and organizations who have provided any kind of boundaries at all, have done so for diverse reasons.

An important definition of the Southern California region comes from the California State Chamber of Cummerce. This organization, for purposes of reporting economic data, divides the entire state into six geographic areas. Of these, Southern California, the sixth and southernmost region, is composed of 10 counties: Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange, Mono, Inyo, San Bernardino, Riverside, San Diego and Imperial (see map).

Another method used to define the region is to draw a straight line through the state at the San Luis Obispo, Kern and San Bernardino Counties lines.

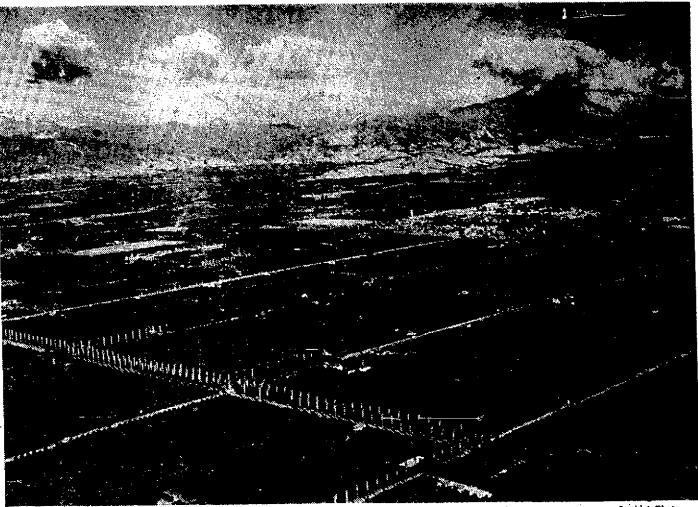

Los Angeles County Chamber of Commerce, in reporting on Southern California agriculture, defines Southern California by drawing the straight line, as explained, and adds Kings County and Tulare County.

The State Chamber of Commerce opposes this definition and includes Kings and Tulare Counties, along with Kern, in the San Joaquin region.

THE NATURAL BARRIERS of the state are so situated that by using them as boundaries, the state can be separated into very distinct regions. Using this same method, the regions can be divided into sub-regions.

The 10 counties of Southern California are separated into three main sub-regions: The coastal plain, the desert, and the mountains.

Of the three, the coastal plain

Valley. It is Los Angeles with its 450 square miles of metropolitan district, the orange groves, the grape vineyards, the Pacific Ocean, the beaches, of the coastal plain.

This eoastal plain includes that portion of Santa Barbara County south of the Tehachapis, all of Ventura, Los Angeles and Orange Counties, and those portions of San Bernardino, Riverside and San Diego Counties west of the mountains (see map).

It has a length of 275 miles and a depth that varies from a few miles to almost 100 miles. any other part of the state as if it were another country. For this reason some name should be coined for this sub-region to separate it from the rest of Southern California, as sharply as it is separated by geography and climate. A name used by many is "Southland."

The name "Southland" would ereate a necessary distinction between a region and a sub-region.

Since the geographical barriers separating the sub-regions of Southern California are so pronounced, it is only natural that the climate should be just as pronounced.

The coastal plain is a semiarid land, ringed by high mountains. These mountains separate the coastal plain from the desert, and keep out the dust and heat. And because the land is near desert, the sun shines most of the year.

It is a combination of mountains, near desert and ocean breezes that make the climate.

IN THIS CLIMATE, the soils of the Southland, while poor, would grow almost anything if irrigated.

There is the story that a man in Orange County was standing on a squash, chopping a hole in it, when he dropped his ax inside the squash.

When he lowered a ladder and climbed down into the squash to retrieve the ax, he unexpectedly met another man, who asked, "Hey, what brings you down here?"

"I'm trying to find my ax," the man answered.

"Heck! You might as well forget it. I lost a hay wagon and four mules down here a week ago, and haven't found 'empet!"

Another story has to do with the phenomenal growth of corn. The corn would grow so fast that it would jump into the air, and pull its roots up with it, and then usually would die.

Fields of corn were reported, though, that lived for quite a spell, even with their roots out of the ground, on the climate alone.

Walled off from the rest of the country by mountain ranges and desert wastes, the Southland, as Helen Hunt Jackson, author of "Ramona," once said, "is a sort of island on the land."

This island on the land is defined as a sub-region of the Southern California region.

And the "Island on the land" is a coastal strip of land, a "land of the sundown sea," a sub-region geographically remote from the rest of the country, a land we call the Southland — jewel by the sea.

By Bob Warner

is the most important.

This coastal plain stretches from Santa Barbara to San Dlego and from the mountains to the Pacific. On the north is the transverse range of the Tehachapi Mountains, which run roughly in an east-west direction, connecting the Sierra Nevada with the Coastal Range.

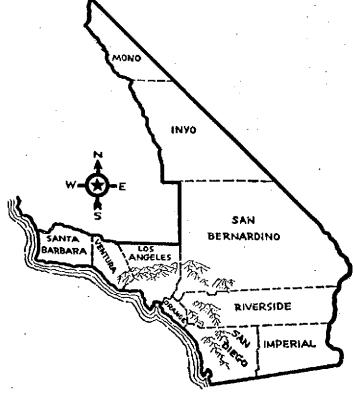

GEOGRAPHICALLY removed from the northern part of the state by the Tehachapis, rescued from the desert by the high barrier of the San Bernardino and the San Jacinto Mountains on the east — this coastal strip, to the people who live in its cities, is Southern California.

To them, Southern California isn't the Mojave Desert, or Owens Valley, or the Imperial The total land area is 11,729 square miles, an area almost as large as Maryland and Delaware combined,

The difficulty that now presents itself is a strange one: A region is dominated by a sub-region.

It is a fact that the coastal plain of Southern California has most of the population of the 10 counties, and a good half of the population of the state. Los Angeles alone has nearly 4,000,000 people.

THE COASTAL PLAIN is made up of a network of cities and towns stretching from Santa Barbara to San Diego, from Santa Monica to San Bernardino. It is the very heart of Southern California, and the area is as distinct, as unlike

-Drawing by Parker Markle,

And these 10 counties—an area as big as Maryland and Delaware combined—comprise Southern California, says the California State Chamber of Commerce.

Whims of Fashion Keep Him in Business

Unit of a mink coat-to-be is tiny animal held by rancher C. A. Labhart. Handlers must use gloves, mink bite viciously.

By Helen Smith

LYNWOOD

MUCH is written about the chinchilla farms of Southern California. Little is known about the mink farms, fully as interesting and fully as thriv-

. Each day these farms are visited by mink coat-conscious women and others who learn first-hand about the little animals who grow the fur for the fabulous coats.

Among the mink ranchers is C. A. Labhart, 3147 Banning Ave. Labhart's venture in mink ráising began eight years ago and within a few years he had 85 females and was concentrating on white mink. Then, realizing that the satiny deep-chocolate toned skins are still the favorite of mink lovers, he switched to the variety known as "natural darks."

By specializing in this one variety he can produce a bundle of 200 to 300 matched pelts -a number sufficient for three to four full-length coats. Some persons, according to Labhart, visit the mink farms to choose the animals whose pelts they wish made into stoles, capes or coats. By this method, he says, it is possible to save money, choose exactly the quality and shades desired, and at the same time get custom-made apparel.

SOME of the ranchers in near-by communities prefer to raise 10 or more varieties. Among the strains are the standards, almost jet black; half-bloods called starlights; pastels which have a lovely tawny shade; breath-of-spring, reddish brown with white breast mottling; pale gray platinum; black and whites; and the deluxe model of the mink family known as sapphire. An ethereal silver gray-blue, there is only one coat of the latter variety in existence at the present time. All of these colors have been developed through cross breeding, one of the purposes of raising so many varieties being that a permanent strain may become fixed to produce that sought-after rarity, a

All these references to "ranches" and "ranchers" might lead one unacquainted with mink raising to believe that a large amount of ground is necessary to raise the animals. Such is not the case, however, for the largest farm in the state covers only five acres, and Labhart's attractive place with its brick-trimmed ranch style home is situated on only an acre of ground. The production of mink pelts, once relegated to the backwoods trapper is now going on all over Southern Cali-

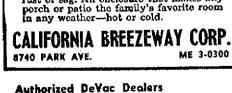

The quality of ranch-bred pelts versus those trapped in the wild state is ever a controversial subject, says Labhart. Wild mink are semi-aquatic, living almost exclusively on fish. Labhart, like most of the growers, has found that a combination of fish, horse meat and cereal, either fresh or frozen, is adequate in every respect to supply a well rounded diet which will keep the animals healthy and grow top quality pelts.

CALIFORNIA, especially the Southland, provides near-perfect conditions for mink farming. . The mild weather makes housing and caring for them, comparatively simple and allows them to be kept in partially covered wire cages, raised a few feet above the ground, the year around. When the thermometer drops to near freezing, the ranchers know a heavy undercoating of fur will result. Too, the Indian summer weather experienced here just as the skins are reaching their prime is balmy enough to prevent harmful singeing.

By November, after months of meticulous care, the mink are "prime" . . . they are supple and glisten in the sunlight. They are at their loveliest and ready to be sacrificed to the cause of vanity and the whim of fashion.

The old slogan, "Join the Navy and see the world," is much more than just a saying, as young men of the Long Beach area who took part in an annual summer training cruise will agree. More than 750 Reservists participated in the 8000-mile cruise which took them to Lima, Peru, the Panama Canal and old Manzonillo. Mexico. For many of these Reservists, the cruise was their first major training aboard a man owar. Under the critical direction of seasomed crews, the previously shore based trainees shaped rapidly into salty sailors who will be ready when needed to mon the ships of the U.S. Fleet. ### A Day With 'Most Perfect Legs'

A certain Hollywood star has been accoladed by John Vogel, famed artist, as having the "most beautiful legs in America," and those shapely limbs have been widely acclaimed in the nation's press. Here are closely a of those tion's press. Here are closeups of those legs in course of a normal day's work in Hollywood, showing them from bedside to "lights—action—camera!" for latest starring picture, "Wings of her latest starring picture. Pt. Fermin, an extreme point of San Pedro Bay, was named for Father Fermin Francisco de Lasuen.

revolts and disagreements between government authorities, Father Lasuen proved himself an able and popular administrator.

Upon the death of Father Serra in 1784, Padre Lasuen became father-president of the mission chain, then numbering nine outposts. He proceeded to found the missions of Santa Barbara, La Purisima Concepcion, Santa Cruz, Soledad, San Jose, San Juan Bautista, San Miguel, San Fernando Rey and San Luis Rey.

Although his headquarters were at San Carlos in Monterey, he was gone most of the time, making trips over crude paths up and down the 500-mile coast-line, eventually placing the mission chain on a sound footing.

Throughout his stay in California, he served without pay, receiving only alms shared by fellow Franciscans. He died in 1803 at Mission San Carlos at the age of 83.

Although overshadowed historically by the volumes written on Padre Junipero Serra, Lasuen was among the most vital forces in the orderly development of California and without him Spanish efforts here might have failed.

By Spencer Crump

UST 180 YEARS AGO TO-DAY, Father Fermin Francisco de Lasuen, one of the best loved of the Spanish padres, arrived in California for 30 years of service, during which he founded nine new missions and placed the chain on a firm footing.

Popular with most factions of Californianos, Padre Lasuen was equally acclaimed by visitors. So esteemed was he by George Vancouver, the English explorer, that the Briton named the extreme points of San Pedro Bay for the missionary. These names, Point Fermin and Point Lasuen, are retained to this day.

Padre Lasuen was born in the Basque province of Alava and served as a missionary in Mexico before assignment to the mission chain in Lower Californit. When these outposts were placed under jurisdiction of the Dominican order, Padre Lasuen was assigned to the newer California chain. He arrived here on Aug. 30, 1773.

THE PADRE was assigned to Mission San Gabriel and later formally inaugurated Mission San Gabriel. Through Indian

YOUR COMMUNITY CHEST

Angels of Mercy

Long Beach, Lakewood, Downey, Carmelitos and Signal Hill, the Visiting Nurse Service, 921 Pacific Ave., gives invaluable bedside care in homes. The Visiting Nurse Service is an agency of the Community Chest, which in October will have its annual campaign for funds.

Miss Mabel Crossley, director, heads the staff of five registered nurses, all of whom have had special university training in public health. The nurses work five days a week, averaging 10 to 12 to care for him. A $3 charge is made for each visit. If the patient can pay - fine, If he can't, perhaps he can pay part of it. But he gets the same service if he can pay nothing.

Explains Miss Crossley: "The visiting nurse helps families carry out medical directions and

WITH SERVICE AVAILA- instructs them how to care for BLE to all residents of the ill person, and how to prevent future illness.

"She teaches infant care to young mothers before their babies are born or afterwards. She counsels on problems directly related to the physical and mental health of all age groups.

"The Visiting Nurse Service is an economical form of nursing. The visiting nurse stays in a home long enough to carry out the physician's orders and give needed care and instruction. In this way a number of families can share the services of one nurse in a single day.

"Visiting Nurse Service is for everyone in the community. The nurse responds to every call but gives skilled nursing care only if a regularly licensed physician is in charge. The nurse carries her own equipment but does not supply medicines or dressings,

"GENERAL NURSING care can be given on the verbal order of the physician, but a written, signed order by the physician is required for hypodermic therapy and complicated dressings."

Three-fourths of the patients cared for by the visiting nurses are elderly, says Miss Crossley. About 10 per cent are young mothers and babies. The nurses work in close co-operation with the Veterans Bureau, American Cancer Society and Tuberculosis Association.

Among the patients being cared for now are two elderly sisters who live together. One sister is blind, the other has just lost a foot. Another is a young war veteran, an arthritis victim who spends days and nights on his back on a reclining wheel chair.

(Editor's Note: This is the eighth of a series of articles dealing with the many services of your Community Chest.)

Thirst Quenchers You'll Like

around the clock and around the calendar, Americans take zestful pleasure in "thirst quenchers" . . . chilled fruit and vegetable juices, as-is, or the party concoctions which we call "punch."

Where only two get together, or where 50 or more assemble, . the hostess can dust off her imagination and with the aid of a few cans, bottles and a color scheme, come forth with some very delectable "refreshers."

Mrs. Frederick Kellogg, 5830 Bayshore Wk., appreciates how closely allied are friends and refreshments. She has keen perception, too, of the importance of those gay little touches which are extra, but mighty nice. For instance, tinted ice cubes and frosted glasses add to the gracious hospitality. She has given us her favorite punch recipe, which we're passing along to you elsewhere on this page. Following are other quenchers for children and for adults:

Perky Fresh Mint

Quickly wash bunch of mint, shake it dry. Then snip of f string, and stand mint upright in container that's tall enough and wide enough to allow mint to spread a bit. Cover, and re-

Cranberry juice with scoop of lemon sherbet.

Milk with touch of vanilla flavoring or molasses,

Sparkling drinks, orange slice over rim, fresh cherries.

Buttermilk mixed with sliced, sweetened strawberries.

Party Fare

Picnic Lemonade: Carry lemon juice and sugar, mixed but undiluted. Or take frozen lemonade concentrate.

Claret lemonade: Empty 1 can frozen lemonade concentrate into one-quart measure; add % cup claret; fill with water; mix well.

Pink Lemonade: Add 1/2 cup crushed sweetened or thawed frezen, strawberries or raspberries per quart of lemonade,

Minted orange juice: Add a drop of mint flavoring to homesqueezed orange juice or reconstituted frozen concentrate. Float mint on top.

Cola flate: Serve Cola drinks with vanilla ice cream.

Homemade ice cream sodas: Pineapple, strawberry, blueberry, raspberry, cherry, mocha, maple-flavored.

Wine Punch

1 cup strong, freshly brewed tea (made using 2 teaspoons tea to a cup of boiling water)

1 cup Angelica, white port, Tokay or any dessert wine 1 scoop (% pint) prepackaged . vanilla, coffee or chocolate ice cream

Traditional Creates Elegance

Traditional furniture on a mall scale was chosen by Jack and Nita Cooper for their home at 5906 Elkport St., thus creating a feeling of unexpected elegance.

JACK AND NITA COOPER have put traditional furnishing to best use in their tract house at 5906 Elkport St., thereby creating a feeling of unexpected elegance.

The small entry hall has been hung with a series of miniatures framed in baroque gilt frames. The tiny pictures are hung in rows on wine velvet ribbon that, in combination with the gold, contrives to create an important note of richness opposite the front door.

A delightful deviation from the "small house rule-of-thumb" is the fact that the Coopers' dining room is a room in itself, completely separate from the living room. The entry, with its dropped ceiling, divides the two.

'Antique blue — a soft greyed tone — is used in the living room and entry. The same color is carried out in the dining room wainscot and paper, unifying the three areas. The use of different wall colors would have lessened the feeling of fluidity and space which the monochromatic color scheme affords.

Mrs. Cooper had these rooms painted, leaving the ceiling and woodwork white. One reason for this is the fact that the white and blue combination gave the rooms a delicate cameo quality often associated with Wedgewood. This, of course, is a perfect setting for the rich mahogany furniture, but the most important reason is that the white ceilings reflect light into the rooms, whereas blue would have darkened them and detracted from their size.

The furniture has all the elegance typical of good period furniture but Mrs. Cooper was wise in keeping the dimensions of the pieces small.

Opposite the bay window, and micely balancing the room, is a mahogany spinet piano. And adjacent to it is a channel-back chair upholstered in cherry-colored velvet.

A sofa, over which hangs a large, round gilt-framed mirror that reflects the dining room opposite, is covered in grey-blue damask. In front of it stands a nest of leather-topped mahogany coffee tables. Furniture like this is ideally suited for the small home. When nested, the tables present a single item of adequate dimensions to hold smoking accessories, a candy bowl and magazinues. But for parties or snack time, two more little tables emerge from under the parent table, ready to serve at a moment's notice.

The dining room has been given a lot of importance despite the fact that its footage is small. A rather ordinary light fixture was replaced with a small but exquisite hanging chandelier of imported crystal prisms. The windows are hung with very full and sheer white tie-backs. The wainscot of the room is blue to match the other rooms. The paper above has a gay pattern depicting dancing couples dressed in costumes characteristic of the Caribbean. The figures are carried out in colors, with white and cherry predominating. The ground is a combination of soft antique blue and a deeper slate shade.

MRS. COOPER'S fondness for blue is further exemplified in the kitchen. This shade, however, is a clearer sky-blue than that used in the living room. The wall tone and the plastic tile flooring match. Windows over the sink and in the dinette are uniquely curtained in glazed chintz in a bright citrus yellow over-patterned in red and blue.

Cabinets are blue, the doors and drawer fronts oyster white and the cupboard interiors are a cheery yellow. What a gay place in which to cook and dine!

The den, which opens off the kitchen, is a charming room gay and friendly. The cafe curtains are dark green with a print valance that repeats the fabric used for the sofa. The pattern of the material is a bright scenic print employing tones of rose and pink, These colors have been repeated in the accessories.

Over the television is a series of authentic line drawings of old Ford cars. Cooper, who is affiliated with Ford Motor Company, finds these prints attractive as well as conversationprovoking additions to the room.

THE MASTER BEDROOM is furnished with Duncan Phyfe mahogany furniture, and the bed is a regal piece featuring a carved lyre foot. Wall-to-wall carpeting is a soft toast color, which harmonizes with the brown and white print spread and Dutch curtains. The walls are soft spring green,

The Coopers' little daughter, Sally, has a room all her own carried out in gay colors of yellow and aqua. Wall-to-wall carpeting and a clever use of yellow and turquoise medallion wallpaper makes it a room of which any young lady might well be proud.

In describing the Coopers' home, a word must be added about the patio which, in reality, is an outdoor living room.

Directly accessible to the den, it is an ideal spot for summer dining and entertaining. Bluegreen lawn furniture and umbrella repeats the turquoise trim of the house. The floor of the patio is of brick-red cement bordered with a low planter wall. Dwarf lemons and rose bushes shelter the area and provide a lush vista of green.

How to Create Floral Arrangements

Mrs. Max Wilmarth carries off many prizes at Southland flower shows. Reason: each arrangement calls for its own container, SHAPED to the floral idea. Here she is glazing a container for floating camellias.

And here is the finished arrangement. It would have been wrong in anything but a low vase since camellias are best floated. And what could be more romantic than camellias and candle-light together?

Bird of Paradise exemplifies an inverted triangle, an arrangement with which Mrs. Wilmarth is most successful.

Amaryllis demanded its own container. Mrs. Wilmarth created one of pale blue with orange stripes to match flowers.

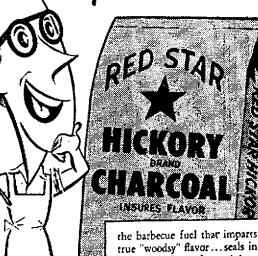

Old-fashioned bouquets, Mrs. Wilmarth feels, should have simple, earthy-type assissiners. Here is one made of rough, peasanty-looking glaze and earthenware.

Plants That Defy Hot Winds

By Bob Gilmore

EVERY year hot winds cause a tremendous a mount of plant damage throughout Southern California. Heat alone is bad enough but when accompanied by a blast of wind, then your ornamentals are sure to suffer. Nor will water alone solve the problem. One solution is to emphasize those subjects capable of tolerating hot winds.

One of our most aggressive growing sun lovers is plumbago capenesis. It is also one of the real camels of the plant world, thriving for a lengthy period with very little moisture. This is the blue cape plumbago that is extensively used throughout the Southland as a semi-climbing shrub. The growth is a bit wild but careful pruning should keep the plant in good appearance. The flowers are azure blue and look very much like the phlox. As the florets mature they turn from blue to a whitish hue. The plumbago grows to about six feet.

Gerberas, being natives of South Africa, are very much at home in Southern California. They can take hot winds in stride. This is another sun lover and is frequently referred to as the African daisy but perhaps more correctly as the Transvaal daisy. The flowers are splendid for indoor decoration, lasting for days after being cut. Colors range through shades of pink, scarlet, erimson, yellow and orange.

Japanese privet, known hotanically as ligustrum lucidum, has an aggressive growing habit and amazingly enough, will do well even in the desert. So don't worry about its health during the hot, windy periods. The plant is widely used as a hedge, its growth being compact and dense.

THE TECATE CYPRESS, similar to the Monterey cypress but far better for most land-scape uses, grows rapidly and enjoys great popularity as a windbreak. It likes an open exposure and demands practically no attention. The plant is more resistant to fungus and borers than related varieties and in many localities seems to grow better. The plants attain a height of from 15 to 20 feet at maturity. The foliage is silvery

Tamarix parviflora is another wind-resistant subject. It is often used for windbreak purposes. The bark is an interesting shade of red and the foliage is needle-like. In spring and summer medium-pink flowers cover the plant.

Portulaca, a native of Brazil, is another heat-enduring subject. This plant is used mainly for ground covering purposes. The flowers are especially gay in tone, including shades of white, pink, yellow, red and purple.

Other subjects capable of tolerating a lot of abuse from sun and wind include helianthus, coreopsis, gazania, statice, salvia splendens, nicotiana, rhus, fremontia californica, salpiglossus, mesembryanthemum, aloe, agave and prunus integrifolia.

RECORD ALBUM

Cellblock Harmony

By Bill Crider

THE MURDERER slapped his guitar in irritation and glared at the lead tenor, a rapist with a velvety voice.

"You flatted," he accused softly. In a corner of the studio an armed guard shifted in his chair. It creaked loudly in the silence.

A weary recording engineer popped out of his glass-fronted cubicle. The job already had taken 14 hours.

"What's the matter?" he eried. "It sounded good, I had a perfect mix. Don't stop in the middle of it like that. Let's take it again."

But it was two hours more before The Prisonaires, five Negro convicts from Tennessee State Penitentiary in Nashville, were satisfied with "The Prisoner's Prayer."

Sam C. Phillips, owner-engineer of the Memphis Recording Service, wasn't surprised. He had worked with The Prisonaires before. "That guitar-ist!" he said. "He's a perfectionist."

Despite the 14-hour session, Phillips was pleased. To his "The Prisoner's Prayer" had that curious mixture of tears and hope that sometimes makes a hit record.

Oddly enough the ballad was written for the convicts by a Nashville cop, James Proctor.

And Gov. Frank G. Clement personally presented The Prisonaires with the guitar used by the baritone and musical director, William Stewart, 31, convicted of murder.

The men travel under strict guard with big prisoner numbers sewn to the backs of their white shirts. Music is their only respite from cellblock routine.

To the Governor, the popular crew is a symbol of "our program of rehabilitation. . . Their musical message is for the people everywhere."

Lead tenor John Bragg, 27, is serving six 99-year terms for six cases of rape; tenor Ed Thurman, 36, drew 99 years for murder; Marcell Saunders, 29, the bass, got one to five years for involuntary manslaughter; John Drue, 27, has three years for grand larceny. Stewart also is serving a 99-year term.

PHILLIPS DREW his unheralded talent from a 10-state area. If any had formal training in music Phillips doesn't know it. Many play homemade instruments.

He listens to them all-from cottonpickers to honky-tenk professionals.

"You can't fell where you'll strike gold," he says.

The biggest strike to date was a violent jazz record, "Rocket 88," which sold 325,000 copies.

He distributes under the "Sun" label. Phillips treats his "artists" with easy humor and understanding. If they're broke, he feeds them. When he feels the situation warrants, he loans money against future earnings. The Prisonaires, of course, don't have to float loans. Eating regularly is no concern of theirs. But suppose their new tune is a hit --- may be sells 225,000 copies? It would bring them about $3000.

The state would hold the money in trust.

RECORD LISTENERS in the romantic mood will want to try the new lps at the Record Section in the Main Library. Suggested titles are "Constance Keen Plays Romantic Keyboard Favorites," "Lemminkainen Legend" (includes "Swan of Tuonela") by Sibelius, "The Sleeping Beauty" by Tchaikovski (Stokowski conducting); "Suite Bergamasque" (includes "Claire de Lune") by Debussy (Gieseking, plano); "Waltzes" by Brahms, and "Woodland Sketches" by Macdowell (Camarata's orchestra).

The top library reserves of the week are for French language records and "Don Juan in Hell."

"Now then, suppose there was an emergency! The other girls were sick and you were called upon to do some typing-could you?"

The Still Unconquered South

THE UNCONQUERED, by Ben Ames Williams (Houghton Mifflin, $5).

Travis Currain fights through the Civil War, and then faces the destruction of all his previous ways of life. "The Unconquered" follows the fortunes of those characters who appeared in "House Divided" and some of their fortunes are ill, others at last attain success in adapting to the confusion of postwar politics. New Orleans faced about every type of violence in its reconstruction period, when Negroes were given power over their white masters and the Northern politicians tried to hold it for them. Murder and more murder appears as the answer to the defeated Southerner, and the Negro was the victim.

This is Williams' last novel; he died before it was published. It shows a great depth of understanding of a defeated people, and it carries a sympathy for the unfortunate Negroes who were flung heedlessly into activities for which they had little aptitude. It's a long novel, and when finished it will demonstrate some of the conditionings back of the Southern people that have held them from a complete political reunion for , generations.

FREEDOM'S WAY, by Theodora McCormick (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50).

First published in June, this novel is in its third edition and deserves several more. Author McCormick has come up with a most sprightly young woman out of 18th Century history and presented her in an adventurous novel of American Revolutionary times. Caroline Matilda became involved in a court escapade, was condemned to death, got her sentence changed to banishment, and then America presented her with an opportunity for romance and intrigue. Enough of the smooth skin of Caroline Matilda is shown from time to time to invoke interest. But even with all her clothes on, Caroline (Sir, I am not the queen of Denmark!) Matilda is certainly good company-G. L.

COME, MY BELOVED, by Pearl S. Buck (John Day Co., $3,75).

Nobel Prize winner Pearl Buck, author of many brilliant novels set in China, switches her locale to India for this one but the result is the same: a fine story, ably told.

The tale revolves about an American who goes to India to become a missionary, determined to live as the villagers live; and a son who follows in his footsteps but who rebels when his daughter falls in love with and asks permission to marry an Indian. The spirit of strange India is here, with its caste system, its jungles and deadly snakes and its monsoons.

NOVELS that stack up with the best continue to flow from Ballentine Books, who issue paperbound and hardbound editions simultaneously. These are not to be confused with most pocket-size issues, which are reprints: Ballentine Books are originals, and the appearance of a Ballentine Book is assurance that here is a brand-new story.

Newest Ballentine titles: "Summer Street," by Hal Ellson; "Indian Country," by Dorothy M. Johnson; "The Secret Masters," by Gerald Kersh; and "Ahead of Time," by Henry Kuttner (35 cents paperbound, $2 hardbound); and "The City of Anger," by William Manchester (50 cents paperbound, $3 hardbound).

tremendous advantages, but before these are achieved some knotty problems must be solved. That's where a new book, "Sunset Ideas for Hillside Homes" (Lane Pub. Co., $1)-written especially for Californians-comes in. Taken from the pages of Sunset Magazine, here are proven ideas with 100 clear "howto" illustrations and 132 photographs showing how to take fullest advantage of view, space for outdoor living, avoid excessive stair traffic, provide protection from prevailing winds, plan drainage; select plants best suited to sloping gardens, and use of decks and terraces. Anyone planning to build or buy or remodel a hillside home should have this book.

FIGHTING INDIAN WAR-RIORS, by E. A. Brininstool (Stackpole, $5).

Most of the famous Indian battles are relived in all the vivid action of spectacular warfare such as no other continent has ever seen. The Plains Indians were named by accomplished white soldiers as the world's finest cavalry, and the events which led up to their last defiant stands are a matter of history. And this is how many of them fought to the last.

BROTHER TO THE DRAG-ONS, by Robert Penn Warren (Random House, $3.50),

Murder of a Negro slave by the two sons of Thomas Jefferson's sister is the basis for this lengthy narrative poem. The incident occurred on the first day of the series of great earthquakes in December, 1811, in the Mississippi Valley. By having the various persons concerned with the incident, including Jefferson, talk, the author examines the matter from many angles. The depth of the retrospect sometimes verges on obscurity, but altogether the work is scholarly and pleasant to the

PUMP FAVORITE

Fashion authorities agree that the suede shoe is going to hold its own in the fall fashion picture for town wear. Why? Because elegance is the keynote this season, and there's nothing so elegant, so feminine and flattering as the slim pump of suede.

Black is the big favoriteblack with delicate dressmaker touches and fine bootmaker details which make the new pumps and sandals real things of beauty. There is renewed interest in dark brown sucde shoes, another fashion of great distinction not so apparent in the last few seasons.

Fabrics have set the pace for this renewed interest in sucde. Lustre and sheen in wonderful new luxury materials for formal town coats and costume suits really demand the dull mat surface of suede as the perfect accessory fashlon.

TYPICAL OF THE NEW

Typical of the new feeling in fashion is the revival of broadcloth, a fabric that has been out of the picture more or less for the last dozen years. This fabric now comes in tissue weight for dresses and also in weight for dresses and also in coat and suit materials. Top de-signers are working with it, with black of course the most popular. But there are also some lovely costumes in winter navy lovely costumes in winter navy or brown.

Broadcloth used to be considered a matron's choice, but not this year. Some beautiful fashions for women have been created in this material. But it also lends itself to very smart coats and suits for the younger

But broadcloth is only one indiention of a trend which makes this fall's clothes very different from the lumps and bumps and loodle cloths of last year.

New coat materials are sleek as a seal and shine like a mirror. as a seal and shine like a mirror. They're of fine wool, mixed with mohair or alpaca, and brushed to give that high gloss. These are heing shown not only in the usual town colors of black, brown and navy, but in greys, beiges, even mauves and other winter mistels, since the nale winter pastels, since the pale coat is becoming a big fall favorite.

DRESSMAKER TOUCH

In place of rabbit's hair, some of these luxury coatings are woven with mink, seal or other precious furs.

Even such classic tailored fabrics as covert and gabardine add ries as covert and gabardine add a silken surface or a satiny facing to appear in important costumes in the new mood for fall.

Naturally, these are not for the one-costume wardrobe. They definitely won't "do for everything." They are the costume for the occasion. But all fashion is showing a marked tendency to create clothes for the right place, at the right time, worn in the right manner and with the correct accessories.

The new sucde shoes capture the correct accessories.

The new sucde shoes capture the same feeling as the costumes. They are tapered as to toe, slim and graceful as to heel, often with a restrained touch of piping, braid or stitching which gives a dressmaker look without interfering with the beautiful lines of the shoe. They too are

Pointed Toe Square at lip

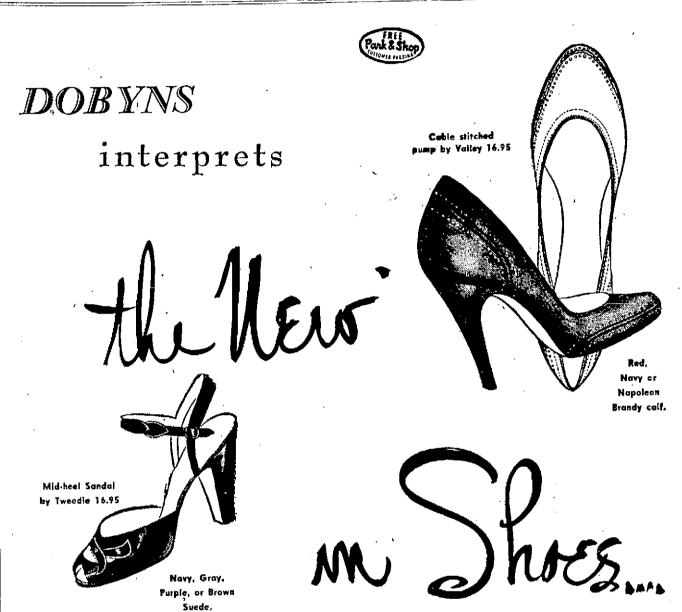

A very popular version of the new pointed shoe is squared off at the tip, the horizontal line accentuated by horizontal bow or ornament. This type is shown in some wonderful suit shoes, often combining two materials or colors.

Thus a high heeled, square toed spectator pump may be made of red calf with vamp of black, or black sucde with vamp in polished leather. Matching sucde bags are in the same formal mood. Simple in line, beautifully tailored of rich velvety suede, they carry just a touch of handsome ornamentation in clasp, buckle or monogram. And suede slip-on gloves, in matching or paler tones carry out the theme of dull-with-shine for fall formality. Pretty Ankles Flattered

ONE OF MOST VERSATILE shoes of the season is the curvaceous, stitched pump as pictured above. Designed in suede or calf, it looks as smart with dressy as with tailored clothes. New rich tones are perfect companions for fall fashions.

Many Flats to Be Worn

Women will be wearing flats this fall. And many of the new designs are pretty enough for all-day wear with town and country suits. The fine detailing of more formal shoes has been adapted to flats with interesting use of materials and color combinations.

A newcomer in the shoe field is tweed patterned corduroy. Corduroy is famous for its sturdy wearing qualities, as witness the corduroy trousers for small boys. It's also light and easy on the foot. For daylong country wear almost any woman would like a brown tweed corduroy with soft toe and counter, trimmed with matching brown leather piping, lacing and vamp medallion.

Maple suede, a soft neutral that goes with everything is used for another flat with the new pancake heel and trimming of white braiding, cut-outs and button on the vamp. This combination of neutral with white continues into fall as a high fashion for casual wear.

Mudguard Illusion

AMONG AUTUMN'S agenda of shades is a new oak color in which this spectator is offered. There is a free-flowing stitch treat-ment which gives the shoe the effect of a mudguard yet keeping it well within the tailored class.

Wide Variety of Leathers

Nothing slodgy about sports clothes this autumn.

Things intended for the great out-of-doors are just as colorful as the scenery, and shoes are going right along with the mood in cappus and country fashion.

THIS CASUAL of benedictine calf with black braid is representative of the contoured heel trend expected to reap compliments. Black or brown suedes with matching braid also are shown with this heel interest.

Patents Now High in Favor

Patent leather has boomed to a high level of popularity that has taken the fashion scene by storm. The sieck polished look of patent has won wide favor among the style conscious, smart American women. Patent has adapted itself ideally to the smooth luxurious look in the new fall fashions.

U. S. Shoe Output 40 Per Cent of All

Each year the American shoe industry turns out a half billion pairs of shoes or about 40 per cent of the total output of the world. New England makes one-third of the shoes produced in the United States.

MOCCASINS such as the hand-laced with kiltie tongue, fringed collar and foam rubber soles (left) were never more stylish. Surefooted comfort derives from bouncy foam rubber soles and elk leather to make the sport shoes, right, a delight to wear.

Men's Footwear Now Showing Definite Trend to Black Leather

No longer is black an "old-gentleman" all purpose shoe in the fall and winter ward-robe of the man who knows what's what. This fall there's a definite trend toward the use of black leathers in men's shoes for both casual and business wear.

Black appears in such varied types as U-wing and conventional wing tips for business to plain tip bluchers and moccasins for wear with the new dark slacks combined with lighter sports jackets.

Far from being stodgy, these polished blacks have a decided look of smart sophistication with the more conservative cut and color of men's fashions for the coming season.

TIME LEATHERS

More news in men's shoe fashions-the return of fine grain leathers, the increasing popularity of aniline leathers and cordovans, the interest in combinations of brushed leathers with calf or reptile. Alligator and suede, or alligator and grain calf combinations are meeting with success for town as well as country wear.

In U-wing tips, calf and cordovan are the leathers most in dovan are the leathers most in demand, followed by the brushed leather and calf combinations. The wood tones and reddish brown leathers have a new richness from the aniline finish which improves with each polishing, tends to give the leather depth of color. Heavier leather and heavier soles are a feature of the fall and winter shoe fashof the fall and winter shoe fash-ions combining comfort with good looks.

BLUES POPULAR

Blue shoes are going to be around this fall, and not just for larly favored by younger men, who like them in sucde and calf combinations. One such uses a long smooth vamp of suede com-bined with ealf in a sllp-on which gives the new effect of slimmer lines. Very good also, the U-wing top slip-on in tas-seled moceasin effect combining calf and suede.

The emphasis on the narrower look is important. It is not achieved by the use of exaggerated lasts, but by the skillful handling of materials and de-tail to get that long shoe effect. This is in line with the more conservative cut, natural shoulder and in general slimmer sil-houette of men's town clothes.

LONGER LOOKS APPARENT

Even in country shoes the longer look is apparent. It appears in such casual designs as a blucher of soft elk leather, hand-stitched, with circular top for that longer vamp, slimmer line. Or in a combination of light tawny leather with brown suede, the contrast emphasizing the long look.

In sports shoes soft leather uppers with cushion crepe soles and casual types with leather covered sides are important. Scotch grains in the new softer tannages are approved. The grain is finer, it takes a better polish and still maintains the sturdy wearing qualitties which have made grains so successful in the past. They run from the light natural tones through the whole gamut of the benedictines, wood browns and reddish au-tumn tones. Very smart in black

Young, Old Favor Suede

If you go way back, before the war, you'll recall that the suede shoe season was very short. It was chiefly a fall shoe, in fashion a few short months. And strictly a woman's shoe.

But look what's happened! Today suede or brushed leather shoes are not only a year-round fashion, but these shoes are worn by men and children as well as by the women.

Suede has been riding the crest of popularity for a good number of years now, and there's no sign of decline. For women, it's way up front in the footwear fashion materials. It's adaptable to so many types of shoes—and shoes for so many occasions. Versatile is certainly the name for suede.

In the men's footwear field, suede or brushed leathers have become a staple item. Navy blue and brown are the top two collors, with grey next. More and more men's fashions in shoes are utilizing touches of suede in combination with smooth leathers. And the all-over suede shoe has become a major style factor ers. And the all-over suede shoc has become a major style factor in the male shoe wardrobe. Perhaps the biggest surprise Perhaps the biggest surprise of all has been the reception of suede in the children's shoe field—particularly with girls from five years and up. Today a truly handsome array of suede shoe fashions—sandals, pumps, dressy oxfords, etc.—are available for this group. The designers have outdone themselves in giving these shoes the little grown-up touches the kids love.

One big impetus in this suede

One big impetus in this suede shoe boom has been the simplicity with which they can be kept looking fresh and clean. kept looking fresh and clean. The surface of these leathers is run against a buffing wheel to give the leather a nap. When the leather has lost its smooth surface to become a narmed surface to be sur surface to become a napped surface, it is then sucde (also known by such other names as brushed, ooze or puffed), leather.

The leather makers have developed techniques whereby suede can be made in strikingly beautiful colors which, when combined with the brushed texture of the leather, creates truly exquisite shoes—which is perhaps the main reason why about no modern wardrobe is complete without one or more pairs of suede shoes.

Open Toe Very High in Styling

Many women prefer the comfort as well as the flattery of an open shee to wear through early fall. ## Shoe Makers in U.S. Are Specialists

America's shoe industry is a wast, modern enterprise of massproduction that turns out about production that turns out about $2,000,000,000 worth of footwear each year. While in one sense it's a mass-production industry with an output of 500,000,000 pairs of shoes yearly, it is, at the same time, composed of a large group of "specialists" highly expect at their work.

Each of America's 1100 shoe

Each of America's 1100 shoe manufacturers specializes in making some of all kinds. A manufacturer will specialize in men's or women's shoes; or boys' or girls' or infants' shoes. But this specialization is refined even more. For example, we have manufacturers making women's highgrade dress shoes, and others making women's casual or sport shoes, and still others making low-price novelty others making low-price novelty shoes, and those producing women's conservative type footwear.

All this applies equally to men's and children's shoes. Thus, there is a specialization by type of shoe, and again by style, and still again by price. Some are super-specialists who make nothing but moccasins, for ex-ample, or athletic shoes, or even hand-made shoes.

That's one reason why American-made shoes are considered the finest and most inexpensive in the world—specialization.

FOOT FIT STRESSED FOR TOTS

Children's shoes don't change too much from season to season, but fashionwise parents are going to find greater variety this fall in styles and colors for small boys and girls, plus increasing attention to the comfort and foot health of the wearers, who certainly are rough on shoes.

Many of the shoes are lower cut, and more flexible in construction. Snug fit at the heel, straight treads and the necessary fullness at the toe are other features which combine

About 70 per cent of the world's population doesn't wear good leather shoes simply because it can't afford them. A pair of ordinary shoes which we take for granted—even a partly worn pair which you've just about discarded—is a luxury to tens of millions of persons.

A pair of leather shoes to a or India might cost nearly a year's pay. Many of these natives wear homemade shoes fashioned out of old rubber tires.

You could do a wonderful turn with those old shoes you have in your closet—your own, your husband's, those that the kids have outgrown — by shipping them to one of the many foreign such collections.

Korea, with its millions of homeless and destitute, is an ideal recipient of those shoes, Inquire into other foreign relief agencies and you'll find numer-ous such places in need of these

If possible, make what minor repairs are necessary before shipping: A new pair of heels, a new pair of laces, etc. These lit-tle items, which we take for granted, are often not available in many communities overseas.

Frequent Changes Prove Healthiest

Change your shoes during the day, if possible, and never wear the same pair two days in succession. This will rest your feet and make your shoes wear longer. Buy your shoes for comfort as well as style. Select them carefully for the purpose intended and be sure they fit your particular feet.

Shoe soles should be flexible where your foot bends. Shoe lengths should be long enough to allow your toes to lie straight.

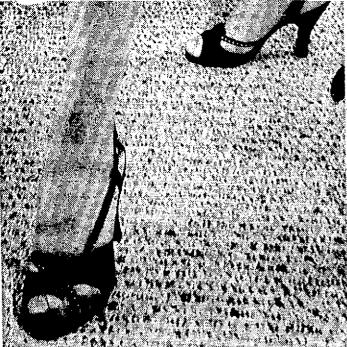

sturdy genuine leather soles, superior construction!

CERTAIN TO BE an outstanding hit in the fall fashion roundup is this wee bit of shoe which has plenty of charm. The black suede is played up with a diamond-like diadem to give you that dressed up nude look.

We're back on the gold standard this fall—gold used in new and unexpected ways in both clothes and accessories.

Take good grey flannel for instance. It certainly looks different with a 'skirt of plain material and a jacket fleeked with little crow's feet of gold stilebear. stitchery.

Or for pure opulence, a fall and winter topcoat of midnight brown boucle, luxurious hairy surface and thin threads of gold glinting through the deep pile of the material. Smart, too, the cocktail suit of worsted in black, taupe or deep navy with a fine gold stripe for the jacket, and plain material for the skirt.

Gold is "The New in Shoes" for formal wear, too. For cock-tail and informal evening wear tail and informal evening wear you'll see the sandal or pump of black satin or crepe with piping, vamp or heel of gleaming gold kidskin. Gold polka dots on black satin make gay and sparkling low cut, high heeled pumps, to give lift to the all-black party dress.

For real evening wear the gold kidskin skeleton sandal has the happy faculty of going with lots of different dance dresses.

Much Gold in Around-Clock Wear

This year the straps are apt to be jeweled with rhinestones or multi-colored fake jewels, and often have a solid jewel heel for added excitement.

Rarely beautiful are the new brocades for the really grand evening dress. These may be solid gold brocade, or one of the exquisite new small floral patterns combining colors such as violet, mint green and gold on black, or flag red, blue and gold on white.

If you have your own ideas about a color scheme, choose the nude sandal or pump of white and gold brocade which may be dyed to match or supply a vivid note of contrast to your new pale evening dress.

HIGHLIGHT of evening costumes this fall will be the new leathers. Here we see gold in a stripping ankle-strap sandal set off by a teardrop "diamond."
